Sales, Income Tax Raised by Legislature In Last-Ditch Effort before the New Year

In its 24-hour session last week, the New Jersey Legislature passed and Governor Thomas H. Kean signed into law, an increase in the sales tax, an increase in the income-tax for upper-income residents of the state and a one-month extension of the law that limits municipal budget increases to five percent.

Starting last Monday, January 3, the sales tax was increased from five to six percent. There are several exceptions: personal property you sold before January 3; tickets you bought and picked up before January 3; building materials you bought and had delivered before that date; a hotel room you occupied and left before January 3 or services rendered in full before that day.

Beginning July 1, over-the-counter drugs, paper products used for toiletry purposes and soap products will be exempt from any sales tax at all. Food and clothing already are.

The new income-tax rates will affect you only if your income is over $50,000 a year. In that case, your rate goes up from 2.5 percent to 3.5 percent.

Incomes between $20,000 and $50,000 will continue to be taxed at 2.5 percent. If you earn below $20,000, you will be taxed, as before, at 2 percent.

The state income-tax you pay between now and April 15 will not be affected because it covers the calendar year 1982. You will not see the new rate on your tax forms until they are mailed out a year from now.

The law placing a five percent cap on municipal operating budgets expired December 31. Legislators extended it for one month so they can debate various proposals for changing it.

Originally, the Legislature had passed a bill allowing municipalities to operate under a six percent cap in any two years of a five-year period. Governor Kean vetoed the measure.

State Legislature Restores Lost $524,000 In Minimum Aid to Princeton's Schools

Princeton's schools will get back their lost $524,000 in state minimum aid.

The good news came in circuitously: over the week-end, school board president Ann McGoldrick read in the Newark Star-Ledger that the Legislature had restored the cut it made six months ago.

"We began making phone calls," Mrs. McGoldrick said.

On Monday, she telephoned the office of State Senator Gerald Stockman and was told by an aide that the measure had indeed been passed. The school's Business Administrator, Judith Horner, called the Department of Education where officials confirmed the news.

"We had to take the initiative to find out anything," remarked Superintendent Paul Houston.

"We still don't have anything in writing," Mrs. McGoldrick added.

According to the understanding of Mrs. McGoldrick and Dr. Houston, the bill is so written that the money comes back to the district in two parts.

Princeton will receive only that portion of the $524,000 that will cover cuts made by the school district through June 30 of this year. The rest will be available to ease the tax burden in the upcoming 1983 budget.

Both Mrs. McGoldrick and Dr. Houston emphasized that restoration of the half-million will not change the board's decision to close one elementary school, move all fifth grades to the middle school in September, and submit a bond referendum to the public this April.

"Obviously, we are very glad to get the money back," Mrs. McGoldrick said. "But we had given

Unanimity Lacking in Voting for Executive Posts On Reorganization Day in Borough, Township

Firestone Replaces Cherry As Deputy Mayor in Township

Starting his second year as Mayor of Princeton Township, Winthrop Pike cited the burgeoning deer population, the aging sewer lines and the costly lawsuits filed as three matters of concern for 1983.

The Mayor made his remarks during the traditional New Year's Day reorganization meeting of Township Committee in the Valley Road Administration Building. Barbara Cantrill, elected over Republican George Adriance in his bid for a second term in the November election, was sworn in to office and took her seat as the lone Democrat on the five-member Committee.

Township Committee annually selects the Township mayor and deputy mayor from among its members, the mayor's post traditionally going to the ranking member of the majority party. Mayor Pike was nominated by Committeeman Richard Schoch, who called him "one of the most able mayors ever to fill the seat" and seconded by Committeewoman Gail Firestone. The vote was unanimous and the mayor took the oath of office from Magistrate Sydney S. Souter.

In a move that surprised many in the audience and seemed to stun Committeeman William Cherry who has just completed a year as deputy mayor, Mayor Pike then placed the name of Gail Firestone in nomination for the deputy position. Mr. Cherry responded by nominating himself, first telling Mr. Pike, "I believe I have served you well, I have served Township Committee well and I have served the people of this Township well." There were no seconds to either nomination, but a second is not necessary to a nomination, Mayor Pike said.

The vote was 3-2, with Mrs. Cantrill, who had often spoken warmly of Mr. Cherry during her election campaign, joining him in support of his self-nomination. Questioned afterwards, Mayor Pike declined to comment on the selection of Mrs. Firestone rather than Mr. Cherry for the deputy mayor post, saying only that he had given the matter "considerable thought."

Hill Reelected as President Of Council by Vote of 4 to 2

The 4-2 vote that re-elected Democrat Barbara Hill president of Borough Council on New Year's Day allowed the briefest peek into what one Council member later referred to as the "Byzantine" situation on that governing body.

New Year's noon is the traditional time for swearing in newly-elected Council members, electing a president, parcelling out assignments, appointing citizens to various boards and listening to the mayor's speech (see page 9B).

After the invocation by the Rev. Louise Kingston, Chaplain at The Medical Center, and the salute to the flag, the two re-elected members of Council, Ms. Hill and Republican Richard Woodbridge, were sworn in.

It is a warm kind of ritual which always involves families. A spouse or a child — sometimes several children — holds the Bible on which the Council member takes the oath of office. The mayor administers the oath, smilingly shakes the hand of the new man on Council and gives a kiss to the new woman member.

This time, there was added warmth, as Council bade a formal farewell to Nelson van den Blink who had resigned in December. She received a gift, her name-plate and praise for her eight years of work.

Invited by Mayor Cawley to make a few remarks as a re-elected member, Mr. Woodbridge pointed out that he is now the senior on the six-member governing body. Then he said:

"The level of trust on Council is not at an all-time high. There are cliques and factions, and the public good is the loser."

Declaring that he accepted "some of the blame" for this situation, Mr. Woodbridge urged his colleagues to examine operating procedures and to work more closely as a team. He did concede that the efficiency of the governing body had been improved.

Mr. Woodbridge is the only Republican on Council.

When it was time to make nominations for the job of presi-

a great deal of time and thought to those decisions. And we know now that we simply cannot rely any longer on getting state aid."

The school tax increase can now be less than predicted — around five percent, instead of the seven-and-one-half percent increase estimated last month — the two officials said.

"We have had to set a long-range course," Dr. Houston explained, pointing out that Governor Kean has warned of further cuts. "We've learned that we want to be as self-sufficient and as independent of the state as possible. It's clear you can't depend on that source for constant support."

Dr. Houston had praise for Princeton residents:

"The public in Princeton was very helpful, sending legislators cards and letters and making those phone calls — it did have an impact.

"It made me feel good to realize that all the days and hours we put in had some payoff, and I hope the public feels good about it, too.

"It's a credit to our representatives, who did support the restoration. Government sometimes works; an individual voice does have power."

Senator Gerald Stockman was scheduled to attend Tuesday's school board meeting to inform the board formally.

dent, Richard Macgill nominated Ms. Hill. Mr. Woodbridge nominated Peter Bearse. Ms. Hill won, 4-2, supported by Robert McChesney, Joseph Blanc, Mr. Macgill and her own vote.

"It has consistently been my position that the presidency should be rotated, and I've said this before," Mr. Woodbridge explained later.

"Also, I had the feeling that Peter is a better representative for Council as a whole because he deals with all members, not with just a few. Barbara deals more with some members than with others. Also I feel that Peter is much more open than Barbara."

He said he had told Mr Bearse he would support him for president if Mr. Bearse decided to stay in the race against Ms. Hill.

"If Peter had decided to withdraw," Mr. Woodbridge continued, "I'd have voted for Barbara to make it unanimous."

Genial Remarks. Other remarks about colleagues on New Year's Day were more genial. When it was her turn to speak as a newly-re-elected member, Ms. Hill reported that her husband had told her to say simply: 'Thank you, shut up and let's go home and watch football."

She will miss Mrs. van den Blink, Ms. Hill said, adding with a grin: "For one thing, she helped me keep Dick Macgill, our resident sexist, in line."

Another tribute to a departing office-holder was made to Democrat Barbara Sigmund who did not run for re-election, and so has gone off the Mercer County Board of Chosen Freeholders. She had served on Council before her election as a Freeholder. Mayor Cawley and Council presented her with a certificate of appreciation.

"It was a real aid to us, to have Barbara in Trenton," the mayor told the audience.

Mrs. Sigmund said she was "totally surprised, but not entirely speechless," by the presentation.

"I'm really awash with nostalgia," she laughed. "I remember that when I was on Council, 'solid waste' was called 'garbage' and 'infrastructure' was called 'roads'."

Committee Assignments. In Council assignments, Ms. Hill will again be Police Commissioner and Mr. Woodbridge, Fire Commissioner. Mr. Macgill will be in charge of public works and finance.

Peter Bearse has been named to the Planning Board, replacing Mrs. van den Blink. Mr. Macgill will be Council's representative on the Joint Sewer Operating Committee.

In other assignments, Robert McChesney will represent Council on the Board of Health, Rent Registration Board, Joint Commission on Aging, Joint Environmental Commission, Intergovernmental Drug Committtee and Public Transportation Committee.

Mr. Blanc will be Council's representative on the welfare board, the Recombinant DNA committee and the Schools-Borough-Township Liaison committee. Ms. Hill will also be on the Joint Recreation Board and will represent Council on the Housing Authority.

William Rodweller was sworn in as Fire Chief, replacing Raymond Wadsworth.

Citizen appointments include Alma Field to a five-year term on the Planning Board; William H. Walker II to a two-year term as alternate on the Environmental Design Review Committee; William Scheide to a three-year term on the Joint Civil Rights Commission.

Also Harry Clark and Alan Chimacoff to four-year terms on the Zoning Board and Letitia Ufford to a two-year term as alternate on the Zoning Board. Douglas Kelbaugh was named to a four-year term on the Construction Board of Appeals.

SEWER SYSTEM STUDY? Committee To Decide. A comprehensive study of the sewer system and a proposal for having the Crosstown 62 Coordinator double as a senior center director occupied Township Committee in its first regular meeting of 1983. The meeting was held Monday in the Valley Road Building.

J.B. Smith, chairman of the Sewer Operating Committe, told Committee of the need for a complete engineering study of the entire sewer system with respect to current capacity and to future growth. The study is estimated to cost $30,000.

The Brokaw Report identified the problems of infiltration and inflow in the sewer system, although the Valley Road and the Harry's Brook trunk lines were so loaded at the time that it was not possible to get a camera inside to see where the problems were. Although there is a great deal of current concern from residents about the overflow from the overloaded Harry's Brook line, and one study is currently being undertaken of that particular piece of the trunk, Mr. Smith argues that one piece of the system can't be remedied without fixing up the whole thing.

He is also concerned about future growth and projected capacity, and cites the Bower development for the added strain it will place on the already overloaded line. Elizabeth Hutter, also present Monday, acknowledged that the utilities element of the Master Plan had not yet been done and agreed that the study proposed by the Sewer Operating Committee was necessary.

Committee did not take any action, but could allocate the amount needed in its 1983 budget.

In the work session Borough Councilman Robert McChesney described for Committee the latest developments in turning the former Miss Fine's School gym into a multi-purpose center for seniors and into studios and offices rented by the Princeton Art Association.

A $50,000 county grant for major roof repairs and insulation of the building stipulates that director be on hand at the center six hours a day, five days a week, he said.

It is Mr. McChesney's thought that the Crosstown 62 Coordinator could move from her present office at Township Hall to the new senior center, and with the addition of an hour a day to her present schedule, become the mandated director. Committee woman Gail Firestone questionned how a center that is supposed to be open to anyone in the county would be administered and wondered if using the Crosstown 62 coordinator in this way would not weaken or threaten the service.

"If this is such a good idea," said Committeeman Richard Schoch, "why can't the community raise the $50,000?" and thereby not be obligated to county stipulations. Committee agreed to discuss the matter further at another time.

Four ordinances were introduced and will be given public hearing before adoption on Monday, January 31. One concerns a change in the composition of the Police Committee to include the mayor, a member of Township Committee and the Police Commissioner but to remove the Township Administrator.

Others involve fees to be paid by developers appearing before the Planning and Zoning boards, the acceptance of Old Orchard Lane, off Mt. Lucas Road, into the public road system, and the correction of omissions in the writing of the residential cluster provisions.

Committee took a quick look at the new conditional density bonus ordinance but tabled it for more in depth study at a later time.

Phillies Caravan Coming

The annual Phillies Caravan makes a stop in Mercer County on Thursday evening, February 3 at Angeloni's, Whitehorse Avenue in Hamilton Township.

Sponsored by WHWH and the Hamilton Rotary, the Caravan's festivities will include a dinner, starting at 6:30 the new Phillies movie, and in-person appearances by Phillies players who will report and discuss the 1983 season.

Tickets, priced at $9.50, are available from any Hamiliton Rotarian or from Cocola Liquors in Hamilton Square.

Committee to Meet on Mondays

Township Committee has changed its regular meeting days from Wednesday to Monday in order to be ahead of --rather than behind -- the Wednesday publication days of the two weekly Princeton newspapers.

Committee used to meet regularly on Mondays but changed the day to Wednesday several years ago to accommodate the academic schedule of Committeewoman Margaret Broadwater who was a faculty member at Rutgers University.

Committee normally meets once a week at 8 p.m. the first three weeks of each month. With the change from Wednesday to Monday, it would thus seem to follow that meetings will be held on the first three Mondays of the month, but the 1983 schedule of meetings adopted by Township Committee last Monday does not exactly follow this logic.

Committee will not meet on the second Monday, January 10, but will meet on January 17 and 31. In February meetings will be held on the 7th, 14th and 28th but not on the 22nd, because of Washington's Birthday holiday. Not until June does the rule of the first three Mondays come into play. The public is advised to consult the TOWN TOPICS calendar each week.

Extra meetings are scheduled every Saturday morning in January and on February 5 at 9:30 a.m. for the specific purpose of hammering out the 1983 municipal budget. Meetings are held in the Valley Road Administration building, except for two joint meetings with Borough Council in Borough Hall. Again, consultation with the calendar is recommended.

This means the Princeton community hasn't forgotten the frail, handicapped teen-ager who needed a special summer camp, the young family without money to pay utility bills, the middle-aged unemployed woman who had used up her savings and exhausted her unemployment benefits ... all ages and kinds of human beings in all kinds of desperate, despairing situations.

RENT, GAMBLING

For Agenda Session. The Borough's Rent Registration ordinance expires February 28, and although Council doesn't plan an extended discussion at its agenda session this Thursday (8 p.m., Borough Hall), it is aware of the impending deadline.

Council does plan to talk about slot machines in bars and liquor stores, and what the state's position might be. In addition, members will discuss raising parking meter fees in the Central Business District, and passing an ordinance requiring those who appeal a decision to Borough Council to pay for the court stenographer. When opponents of the PCH housing project made their appeal to Council, taxpayers were forced to pick up the bill.

Hiring a consultant to prepare the application for a housing grant will also be on the table for discussion. Under consideration are Charles Nathanson, and Martha Lamar of the Michael Colman firm.

"It's got to be done in '83!"

That's what Mayor Robert W. Cawley told reporters Monday about starting to repair Princeton's sewers. It has been suggested that Borough and Township spend $30,000 to find out whether the sewer system has "capacity problems."

Mayor Cawley said that in his view, it made no sense to study the capacity of the sewer lines until all the infiltration had been eliminated.

Freight Yard for Waste? Commenting on another kind of waste, Mayor Cawley said he thought the Trenton freight yard was a "viable site" for the disposal of Mercer County's garbage if the facility could be designed to get around the flood-plain problem.

Mercer County's Freeholders chose the site, but the Department of Environmental Protection has warned that it is on the flood-plain. Because the site is close to customers who could use the steam produced by processing the garbage, it is "economically attractive," and worth spending money on to make it acceptable to the DEP, the mayor said.

MAN ARRESTED

For Bomb Threat Call. An unemployed Somerset resident, William F. Doyle, 34, was arrested in his home last week by Borough police and charged with making a bomb threat call to the Princeton Medical Center.

Doyle was later released, pending his arraignment here in Borough Court this Wednesday. The charge -- making a false public alarm -- is an indictable offense and police said that his case will be forwarded to the Mercer County Grand Jury for possible further action. If convicted, Doyle faces a maximum fine of $7,500 or 18 months imprisonment or both.

Police responded when a switchboard operator at the hospital received a call at 3:35 last Tuesday afternoon, reporting that a bomb would go off. A search of the hopsital by police and employees failed to locate any bomb.

Chief Michael Carnevale said that the caller had stated why he planted the bomb but he declined to reveal that information. Chief Carnevale did reveal that Doyle had made numerous calls to the Medical Center over a long period of time and that this was not the first bomb threat call. Doyle, he said, was not a former employee or patient at the hospital.

Doyle was arrested following an investigation by Detectives Gerald Patterson and William Clark. Chief Carnevale commented that police had been working on the investigation for a long time.

7 CHARGES FILED

Against Shotgun Wielder. Seven police charges have been filed against Harold Graves, 59, 21 Lytle Street, who was arrested last week, after he allegedly threatened a Shirley Court resident with a shotgun during an argument. Graves was later released on $350 bail set by Borough Judge Russell W. Annich Jr.

Ptl. Anthony Federico, Ptl. Donald Dawson and Ptl. Dennis McManimon had responded to a 3:31 a.m. anonymous call Friday, reporting a man with a shotgun on Shirley Court. The suspect was gone on their

Police Chiefs Applaud New Law Raising Minimum Drinking Age

Princeton's Chiefs of Police, Michael Carnevale in the Borough and Anthony Pinelli in the Township, have both voiced similiar reactions to the new state law raising the legal drinking age from 18 to 21. Each applauded the measure and each commented it was something that should have been enacted sooner.

While agreeing that the higher age minimum will result in fewer motor vehicle accidents, Chief Carnevale warned, "In addition to that, we have to look at the long-range results. It's going to take maybe ten years or more to reverse the bad effects that the lower drinking age has made upon our young people.

"What we've done is we've created young alcoholics."

Chief Carnevale said that as long as 12 years ago he was insisting that alcohol was a major problem in the state. "They should have listened not only to me but to all responsible law enforcement agencies when they changed the age to 18. We were all vehemently opposed."

Over the years, police tried to have the law changed back to 21, Chief Carnevale stated. At a state Chiefs of Police conference two years ago, he reported, the Chiefs, by resolution, actively campaigned to have the drinking limit changed.

Said Chief Pinelli, "I always was against them lowering it. My feelings are at 21 you had kids 18 and 19 years old drinking; when they lowered it to 18, you had 15 and 16-year old kids drinking. Even 14-year olds.

"We've seen a definite increase in drunken driving since the age limit was lowered.

Kids 18 or 19 would purchase liquor and bring it to parties in the Township, Chief Pinelli commented, "and 15 and 16-year old kids would be there to drink it.-It used to be isolated before, but when they lowered the age limit it seemed that in most Township parties there was consumption of alcoholic beverages."

An Up and Down Week for Bill Blackburn

William Blackburn, the 56-year old drifter who found himself back in Princeton for the Christmas holidays, now has found himself back in the Mercer County Detention Center for the New Year.

Actually Mr. Blackburn's fortunes took several turns in the past week. At midday Christmas he was spotted on Nassau Street, hoping to find a warm place to spend the winter nights. Within an hour or two, however, he ran into a sympathetic Palmer Square resident who invited him into her apartment for a Christmas dinner of roast duck. He behaved perfectly, she reports.

But by New Year's Eve, Mr. Blackburn was creating another impression in the eyes of Borough Police. They arrested him at 7:55 p.m. for shouting obscenities and disturbing people in a restaurant on Witherspoon Street and again at 9:37 p.m. for creating a disturbance on Palmer Square.

At 9:30 a.m. on New Year's Mr. Blackburn was reported to be disturbing customers at the Wawa store on University Place but was gone when police responded. At 6:30 p.m. another restaurant on Witherspoon Street reported that he was disturbing patrons. Police ushered him out, after the owner declined to sign a complaint. At around midnight that day, police report, Mr. Blackburn approached a 17-year-old Pennington resident as he was walking to his car, parked on Witherspoon. "Do you want to be shot?" Mr. Blackburn asked. He poked what the youth believed to be a weapon at him and asked him if he had any money. Saying he wanted something to eat, Mr. Blackburn forced the youth to drive him to the Wawa.

The youth complied and then drove off when Mr. Blackburn entered the store. The next day, according to police, the Pennington resident discovered Mr. Blackburn's belongings in his car. He returned to Princeton and turned them over to Borough Police, at which time he notified them of the night's events. Sgt. Ronald Holliday and Ptl. Dennis McManimon found Mr. Blackburn at the Dinky Station and arrested him for endangering the safety of the teenager and threatening him with a weapon.

Later, slightly exasperated Chief of Police Michael Carnevale, holding the stack of arrest reports that Mr. Blackburn had so quickly generated in his visit here, described him as "somone who cannot function in society ...and his record will bear that out."

Bail was set at $3,500. The weapon, incidentally, turned out to be only a piece of shiny pipe. The roast duck was the real thing, and was said to be delicious.

arrival but a further investigation, including information from witnesses, resulted in the arrest of Graves inside a Shirley Court home. Police recovered the loaded shotgun.

Graves was charged with aggravated assault for threatening the Shirley Court resident, terroristic threats and resisting arrest. During his arrest, he sustained two broken ribs and was treated at nearby Princeton Medical Center.

Graves was also charged with unlawful possession of a firearm, possession of a firearm without an ID card, possession of a shotgun by a convicted person and possession of a firearm without lawful permission.

BAD DAY AT RED OAK

For Canal Road Resident. The new year got off on the wrong foot for Gene T. Jones, 28, of RD 1, Canal Road.

Jones was arrested at 1:51 Saturday morning in Princeton Community Village for allegedly shouting at, disturbing and harrassing a Red Oak Row resident. According to police, Jones had visited the victim earlier and had been asked to leave but returned a second time.

He was charged with harrassment and criminal trespass. He was also charged with resisting arrest and assault on Ptl. Virgil Angelini, whom he allegedly kicked and shoved. During a search of Jones, police found less than 25 grams of marijuana in his possession and added a fifth charge of possession of a controlled dangerous substance.

Jones was later released on $1,000 bail, pending his appearance in Township court.

Three Are Charged. Carl Cacciatore, 42, of Bordentown, his 17-year-old son, and William Hickey, 23, of Trenton, were arrested last week by Township police and charged with malicious damage to an abandoned house on Mt. Lucas Road.

prehended Saturday morning while attempting to cut a whole in the exterior wall of the wood frame house and remove some old furniture left inside. Police report that the structure is owned by Princeton Township.

The three were arrested by Pfl. John Seeley Jr., who was responding to a 10:56 call from neighbors. All were later released.

APARTMENTS ENTERED

At Stanworth. Two apartments in the Stanworth Project were entered Sunday and looted.

Between 3:45 and 7:35 p.m., someone forced a side window of an apartment and once inside took a television set, cassette tape deck, stereo amplifier, turntable and speakers with a combined value of $1,103. A second apartment, entered between 10:30 in the morning and 11:54 at night, yielded stereo equipment and a color television set worth $1,807. Entry was gained through an unlocked window.

The Princeton University student center was entered overnight last week when it was closed -- 4:30 p.m. to 6:40 a.m. -- by a thief who pried open a bill changer machine and departed with approximately $400 in quarters. Police report the machine had been literally torn apart by a tire iron and hacksaw.

A second-floor Witherspoon Street office was entered by way of a window sometime during the New Year weekend. Police said the occupants were in the process of moving and many packed boxes were rifled. The only thing known to be taken is a $10 tennis racquet but police add that more items may be missing.

DIET FOR THIEVES

An Apple a Day. An Apple II Plus computer valued at $1,200 and an Apple disc drive worth $500 were stolen last week from Princeton University's Jadwin-Fine complex off Washington Road. According to Township police, the computer was in a room where the cyclotron group was conducting experiments. The room to the door had been locked but it was found unlocked when the theft was discovered last Wednesday.

Tools and materials, including a $600 hydraulic knockout set, two drills and 100 feet of copper wire with a combined value of $1,043, were stolen last week from a large gang box adjacent to a new building under construction at 330 Alexander Street. The victim is Peifer Electric Co. of Trenton.

A pair of skis, ski boots and ski poles worth a combined $535 were stolen between 4 and 6 a.m. Saturday from an enclosed porch of a Riverside home. There was no forced entry. Police said that a party had been held at the home earlier and that other skis, boots and poles had been left behind.

Clothing Shoplifted. A $260 evening dress and a $95 pair of silk slacks were shoplifted

School Closing, Bonds

The two citizen committees assigned to ponder which elementary school to close, and how to structure an April bond referendum, will be meeting every Monday night until their reports are ready in late February.

Meetings of both committees are held in Princeton High School: the school closing committee from 7:30 to 10 p.m. in the Davis Conference Center and the BRAC (Bond Referendum Advisory Committee) in the new library at 8 p.m.

Although the public is invited to sit and listen to both groups, there is no provision for public comment; however, Monday, January 24 has been tentatively set as a date for public comment on closing a school.

11% IS ONE REASON WHY YOU SHOULD BANK WITH US.

BUT IT'S NOT THE ONLY ONE.

Money Market Account

Maintain an average monthly balance of $2,500 or more in New Jersey National's Money Market Account, and you'll earn at least 11% from now until January 14, 1983. After that, we'll continue to pay high money market rates.*

Our Money Market Account offers the security of FDIC insurance. And you can make deposits or withdrawals as often as you like at any of our 52 Red Circle offices. Or use your MAC® card at over 300 locations to gain access to your funds 24 hours a day, 7 days a week.

This account alone is a pretty good reason for banking with New Jersey National. But it's far from being the only one. For instance, consider the following services...

Discount Brokerage Service

If you trade in the market, this service can save you up to 70% on securities transactions as compared to full-cost brokerage firm commissions (based on a 1982 telephone survey). And in conjunction with your Money Market Account, it will allow you to maximize your return on investable funds.

Insured Money Market Checking

As of Jan. 5, this new checking account pays high money market rates on your investable balance. It requires a minimum deposit and average monthly balance of at least $2,500. Call or visit us for detailed information on our new Insured Money Market Checking account, which is available to individuals, municipalities and nonprofit organizations.

Other checking options

Red Circle Checking—It's free with a minimum monthly balance of $400.

Red Circle NOW Account—Free with a minimum monthly balance of $1,000, plus your money earns 5¼% interest.

Full Circle Plus—Free with a minimum monthly balance of $2,000 or more, and you earn 5¼% interest. Plus you get VISA/MasterCard with no annual fee, free travelers' checks, and more.

The next step

To apply for a Money Market Account, Discount Brokerage Service, or for detailed information on any of the above services, visit any New Jersey National office. Or call our toll-free Customer Service number: 800-222-0033. You'll find out how the Red Circle Bank can round out your financial picture.

*If the average monthly balance falls below $2,500, federal regulations require an interest rate of 5¼% for that period. Average monthly balances below $500 are subject to a service charge of $5. The 11% offer is available to individuals only.

Friday morning from a women's apparel store on Nassau Street. The suspect is a woman.

An employee of the Princeton Medical Center left her purse unattended for half an hour on a counter in the cafeteria. Missing when she returned, the purse was later found on Greenview Avenue intact except for the $23 it had contained. Police add, however, that a pair of subscription glasses in the purse, valued at $150, were destroyed.

A woman's 10-speed, $200 bicycle was stolen last week from a locked garage on Linden Lane, and a $35 mailbox was stolen last week from its location on Elm Road.

Christmas Tree Collection

Christmas trees will be collected in the Township at curbside beginning Monday and continuing through Friday, January 14.

Collection will be according to election district, with trees collected in districts 1, 4, and 14 on Monday; district 5, 6 and 10 on Tuesday; district 3, 9 and 12 on Wednesday, January 12; district 2 and 11 on Thursday, January 13; and district 7, 8, and 13 on Friday, January 14.

DOORS KICKED IN

On Parked Car. A 1983 small foreign car parked in the Tulane W. lot last Wednesday night drew the wrath of someone who caused $178 in damage.

Both doors were dented. Police said that it appeared as if someone had kicked at the doors as sneaker prints were still visible. A tail light lens of the car, owned by a Plainsboro resident, was also broken.

A two by five-foot piece of plate glass in a door at the PMC TV Service on Leigh Avenue was broken between 6 Thursday evening and 7:45 the following night. Replacement cost: more than $100.

In another act of vandalism, a beer bottle was hurled through a two by three-foot storm window of a Herrontown Road home last week, shortly before midnight.

DRIVER IS TICKETED

For Failing To Stop. Anthony C. Chieffald, 71, 186 Oaklyn Terrace, Lawrenceville, was issued a summons Monday when he failed to stop for a Ewing Street stop sign, causing a two-car collision at the intersection of Valley Road.

His car struck a car traveling east on Valley operated by Isabelle Stouffer, 70, 49 Palmer Square. Mrs. Stouffer was treated at Princeton Medical Center for contusions and abrasions of the head. A 69-year old passenger in her car, which had to be towed, was treated at the hospital for contusions and abrasions of the face. Ptl. James Vandermark was the investigating officer.

Loses Control. As he applied his brakes to turn into a drive at 75 North Road early Saturday morning, 18-year old Alan D. Little, 168 Herrontown Road, lost control of his car when it began to skid.

It continued off the driveway and struck a mailbox and some trees, injuring a passenger -- 14-year old Torben Larsen, 105 Longview Drive. Larsen was treated at the Medical Center for head injuries. There were no charges by Ptl. John Clausen.

TWO DRIVERS CHARGED

With Drunken Driving. Two drivers were arrested last week, one by Township police, one by Borough, and charged with drunken driving.

Jaroslaw Fat, 20, 107 Grover Avenue, was stopped on Alexander Street near University Place at 2:08 Friday morning by Ptl. Robert Buchanan, who observed him driving in an erratic manner. He was placed under arrest and also subsequently charged with possession of a controlled dangerous substance after police, during their investigation, found Fat to be in possession of less than 25 grams of marijuana. He was later released.

Michael Cahill, 27, of Westwood Drive, Ewing, was arrested after being stopped at 4:32 Friday morning on Mercer Street near Lovers Lane by Ptl. Randy Sutton and Ptl. John Reading. He was charged with driving while under the influence of alcohol.

An additional charge -- possession of CDS -- was tacked on when police, in their investigation, found two prescription capsules in Cahill's possession. He was later released in $250 bail.

DRIVER FINED $765

For Driving While Revoked. John M. Duncan, 7 Pine Street, was fined $750 and $15 court costs Monday in Borough traffic court for driving while his driver's license was revoked. It was his second offense. The new state minimum fine for a first offense is $500. Mr. Duncan also paid a second fine of $60 for speeding.

Judge Russell W. Annich also fined Floyd E. Roberts, 220 Valley Road, $60, for a one-way violation, and Maryvonne M. Foust, 58 Pine Knoll Drive, Lawrenceville, $60, for failure to give a proper signal.

SPRING COURSES SET

By Adult School. Mail registration in now underway for the 67-course Princeton Adult School spring program.

Booklets describing the classes and providing registration information have been mailed to residents of Princeton and surrounding areas. Additional brochures are available at the Princeton Public Library or by calling the Adult School at 883-5675 on weeknights from 7 to 9.

Many classes are limited in size and fill up quickly. The Adult School urges the public to enroll as soon as possible by mail. Registration may also be made in person on Thursday, January 27 from 4-6 and 8-9:30 p.m. at the Princeton High School cafeteria.

Classes are held on Tuesday or Thursday evenings at Princeton High School, beginning on February 8 and February 10. Courses run from four to 10 weeks and are open to all residents of Princeton and neighboring communities. Fee discounts are available for senior citizens and students under 18.

Among the noteworthy courses being offered is a 10-week series on Albert Einstein, the scientist and man, taught by three members of the Albert Einstein Project, which is organizing his papers for publication. John Stachel, John Norton and Robert Schulman will discuss Einstein's scientific achievements as well as his political, social and educational thoughts, his struggle against war, and his relationships with the Jewish People.

Back by popular demand is a ten-week course on "Technology Update." Ten specialists from industry and Princeton University will discuss the latest events in technological development in areas such as computer technology, energy, hazardous waste management, satellite communications, health care and lasers.

On the cultural side, two new courses are being offered. "Unknown Masterpieces," taught by Eve Beglarian, will provide an introduction to rarely performed musical works by famous composers. Jane Pettit will teach "An Introduction to the Art History of China," covering the culture's bronzes, jades, paintings, pottery and porcelains from Neolithic to modern times.

Three courses have a particular New Jersey focus. A four-week series on "County Government in New Jersey" is being offered by the Adult School in conjunction with the Princeton Area League of Women Voters. Barbara Sigmund, a two-term Mercer County Freeholder, is among the speakers. Helen Schwarz, author of "The New Jersey Home," will present four lectures on the domestic architecture of the state in a course entitled, "Architecture and History: A New Jersey Adventure."

A complement to last fall's course on cats in the spring offering "Dog Talk, with veterinary J.S. Blumenthal, who will discuss dog training, behavior, illnesses and nutrition.

The Adult School traditionally offers an array of courses teaching special skills. This spring's selections include two new entrees. "Starting Your Own Business" provides advice from a team of accountants, bankers and lawyers for those who want to know the essentials of a new venture, whether it's fulltime or just a hobby. The course is presented in cooperation with the Princeton Chamber of Commerce.

The other new selection is "Developing Your Own Style in Commodity Trading." Irwin Rosenblum, a commodities trader, will explore key aspects of trading for those with some knowledge of the commodities market.

Computer courses, art classes and language instruction, including English for Speakers of Other Languages (ESOL) are also among the spring offerings at the Princeton Adult School.

A seminar, "New Dimensions in Creativity," will be held on Sunday, January 16 from 1:30 to 4:30 at the Art People Center. It will be led by Linda Vaughn Fitch, Princeton therapist, musician, dancer and writer, who has developed techniques to awaken the senses that have an immediate effect on a writer's imagery and flow of ideas.

On Sunday, January 30, a seminar on "Breaking into Print: How to Get Published in a Tight Market," will feature Eileen Fallon, a literary agent with Barbara Lowenstein Associates, who will talk about how to write the types of genre fiction that are selling now. In February and March there will be seminars on suspense thrillers; travel articles and cookbooks; and a special panel for academics.

The PWC writers' group, which meets on the first and third Mondays of the month at the Center, will resume on January 3. Poetry readings over coffee, held on the second Monday of the month, will begin again on February 14 with a reading by James Richardson, author of "Reservations" and chairman of the Creative Writing Program at Princeton University.

Enrollment for all events is limited. Some scholarships are available. For further information and registration write to Princeton Writers' Center, 10 Nassau Street, or call 924-3511.

"Groceries" — Wow!

The "first annual" holiday concert at the Art People Place last Thursday drew 300 young people — with many turned away — to the Place to hear "The Groceries".

Music was in the upstairs auditorium, soft drinks in the room with the fireplace and no hanging around on the stairway, please! Helpers, says the sponsoring Arts Council, were invaluable: William Lockwood, Patrick and Margaret Keenan, Bill and Nancy Robins, Marcy Crimmins, Josh Greene, Alison Harris, Jan Olasz, David Reeves; Larry and Sharon Tarantino, Phil and Joanne Carchman — and Mayor and Mrs. Robert W. Cawley.

Uneasy about whether the "first annual" would be a success, the Arts Council was delighted: they more than broke even, they even made money. "The Groceries" were happy, too: "It was a good gig."

PROGRAM PLANNED

For Newly Widowed. The Mercer County Surrogate office will sponsor a ten-week program for the newly widowed, beginning Monday, January 10. The program is called H.O.P.E. and will be held at 10 a.m. at the Lawrence Library in the Lawrence Shopping Center, Route One.

H.O.P.E. stands for "Helping Other People Evolve." The goal is to help widows and widowers evolve through the natural stages of grief. The program is run by volunteers who have experienced loss and are now reaching out to help others.

Subjects to be covered in the weekly sessions include dealing with loneliness, goal setting and planning, money management, inheritance tax laws, wills and probate, cooking for one, getting through grief, and how to avoid consumer ripoffs. The program is free to Mercer County residents. For information contact Mercer County Surrogate Joseph Tighue, P.O. Box 8068, Trenton, 08650, or call 989-6336.

HUGHES GIVES LIBRARY

And Furniture. Former governor Richard J. Hughes has given his private library and several pieces of rare furniture to Trenton State College, it was announced this week.

The collection includes "a number of significant titles on American government, history and art," according to Joyce Brodowski, associate director of the library.

There are also presentation copies of books, signed by the authors, that were given to Governor Hughes when he was governor and chief justice of New Jersey. Other volumes were acquired by Mrs. Hughes when she had her own television show.

In addition, the library has books collected by Governor and Mrs. Hughes in their travels abroad, and volumes presented to them by officials of various governments. Special gift-plates have been designed for the front of each book.

"Governor Hughes also presented us with an antique library ladder, of which he is very proud," Dr. Brodowski said.

Other furniture pieces are 18 hand-carved Italian chairs, a dining table and breakfront. A marble-topped sideboard, a china closet and an old-fashioned wooden business desk have also been presented to Trenton State by the Hughes'.

Governor and Mrs. Hughes sold their large Princeton home on Westcott Road and have moved to smaller quarters. They decided to make the presentation of books and furniture when they moved from the large house.

The library collection is already in the Roscoe L. West library at Trenton State.

E.B. WHITE FOCUS

Of Readings Over Coffee. The Princeton Public Library will present "Readings over Coffee" with Dr. Donald Ecroyd, professor of Speech at Temple University on Wednesday, January 19, at 10:30.

Dr. Ecroyd has selected poems, sketches, and stories by E.B. White. Refreshments will be served prior to the program, and everyone is invited.

Tribute to Anne Truitt.
To the Editor of Town Topics:

As its December meeting the members of the Princeton Joint Commission on Aging voted unanimously to go on record in tribute to the memory of the late respected and much loved Chairwoman Anne Truitt.

Anne brought to the Commision the dedication and perception of real leadership, directly participating in the major undertakings. A schoolteacher in the past and a registered nurse concentrating in the field of geriatrics, Anne consistently followed her confirmed humanistic creed as a Quaker.

She took time out to voluntarily coordinate the free anti-hypertension clinics of the Community Home Health Aid Service and was involved in other areas of aid to the sick, the infirm and the elderly.

The members of the Commission will not forget this charming woman whose cheerfulness and thoughtfulness were reflected at every meeting. She never failed to drive those members who needed transportation to and from the meetings.

Her passing was a deep personal loss to many Princetonians and a great void was left in the ranks of those who live as good and loving neighbors always.

DAVID F. SULLIVAN
Secretary, Princeton Joint Commission on Aging

Thank You, Methodists.
To the Editor of Town Topics:

Thank you, to all those who helped make the Methodist Church of Princeton barrier-free. A beautiful job!

It's a warm and welcoming feeling to see places being made accessible for wheelchairs. Thank you!

Top Budget Priorities.
To the Editor of Town Topics:

At a time when various public services are competing for budgetary allocations by our Borough and Township, I would like to observe that, since so many of our community objectives seem to be substantially unattainable regardless of cost, appropriations for support of our crucial and dedicated First Aid and Rescue Squad and our splendid public library ought to have top budgetary priorities as directly and unequivocally beneficial to all Princetonians.

Praise for Miss Dukas.
To the Editor of Town Topics:

I think your "In Memoriam" designation for Helen Dukas as "secretary for many years to Albert Einstein" insufficiently describes her status as archivist and trustee for Einstein's voluminous papers.

For over twenty-five years after his death, she descended into the vault in Fuld Hall five days weekly to codify and write resumes, and Einstein scholars acknowledged their great debt to her: Sir Ronald Clark for his monumental study "Einstein" spent a year at the Institute for Advanced Study pouring through the papers perpared by her; Banesh Hoffmann cites her collaboration on the title page of his "Albert Einstein, Creator and Rebel" and makes her co-author of "Albert Einstein, The Human Side: New Glimpses from his Archives," and most recently Abraham Pais pays her a glowing tribute in his definitive and highly acclaimed book "'Subtle is the Lord...' The Science and the Life of Albert Einstein" just published.

Even hallowed Harvard while identifying her the way you do, acknowledges her in "Einstein: A Centenary Volume." Significantly, her name gets indexed more often than presumably more illustrious people, including scientists. This is truly a triumph for humanism (in the ever constant battle!)

The seemingly hard-to-grasp fact about Helen Dukas is that she became a foremost Einstein scholar not because she was his secretary but because of her outstanding intellect, her exceptional ability and above all her passionate interest and belief in the value of people and events of Einstein's life.

That no specific honorific as an Ivy League professorship, or honorary degree came her way is as much a tribute to her modesty and judgment as it is a commentary on the lower titles or status women accustom themselves to: she had her life work down there in the vault, and because of the unceasing work, it came out accessible to scholars, people, everyone, specifically, now in Princeton University's Mudd Library for Manuscripts on Olden Street, and in Hebrew University in Jerusalem.

There must be at least a hundred people in Princeton aware of these facts about Ms. Dukas and many more. I urge them to add to our knowledge of this remarkable woman.

In 1982 another "valued resident," Mary Anders, head of the Circulation Department of the Public Library, died. In mourning her, we appropriately raise our voice in "Auld Lang Syne" to commemorate her Scottish nature and wit: "Should auld acquaintance be forgot?"

THE SKY, FOR KIDS

Dinosaurs,for Others. "The Child's Sky," a new 30-minute show designed especially for children under the age of seven, is being shown each Sunday at 1:15 on a trial basis in the New Jersey State Museum Planetarium, West State Street.

In the past, children under seven have been excluded from most Planetarium activities. "The Child's Sky" will continue at least through February. Free tickets to all Planetarium programs are distributed in the lobby on a first come-first served basis, starting half an hour before show-time.

"Death of the Dinosaurs," for adults and older children, will be the Planetarium's feature for January and February. It will be given at 2 and 4 on Saturdays and Sundays starting this Saturday. A companion program, to be shown at 3, will be "Winter Skies."

The dinosaur program examines the existence of supernova outbursts, asteroid collisions and other phenomena which have been proposed as possible reasons for the demise of the dinosaur. "Winter Skies" simulates the current sky on a winter evening.

Telephone System Changes

The changes that have been made in the Bell telephone system, starting January 1, are complex and confusing. Here are answers to some customer questions:

Can I go on, just as I have for all these years, leasing my telephone?
Yes.

Can I get a newer instrument, but still continue to lease?
Yes, you may do that, too.

If I continue to lease my phone, will the telephone company continue to repair it, as they have always done?
Yes.

Suppose I decide that it will cost less, over the long run, to buy my telephone instead of leasing it. Can I buy the instrument I have now?
Not just yet. New Jersey Bell has asked the Board of Public Utilities to approve a plan that would allow you to buy the phone you're using now, but it hasn't been approved so far.

Can I go out right now and buy a new instrument and give up the one I'm leasing?
Yes. You can go to any store that sells instruments, including the new American Bell store in Quakerbridge Mall, and buy a designer-style telephone. Or you can buy one of the six models sold by New Jersey Bell, but only so long as the supply lasts. N.J. Bell expects that their supply will last through 1983, although there may be shortages in some models and colors.

Who installs this new phone I buy?
You do. Or, if you buy one of the six models sold by N.J. Bell, they'll install it for you at a charge. Company officials say it's easy to put in the jacks.

What should I do with the old telephone after I've bought a new one?
Call the telephone company's business office — number in your telephone directory — and tell them what changes you have made. They will either tell you where to take your old telephone, or will make arrangements to remove the kind of telephone you can't remove yourself, like a wall phone.

How long do I have to decide whether to go on leasing or to buy a new telephone?
There is no deadline.

What happens if the Board of Public Utilities says New Jersey Bell can sell me the phone I have now?
You would buy your phone "as is," with a 30-day warranty. After that, you would be responsible for maintenance and repair.

How much would I have to pay for my present phone?
Proposed prices range from $29.95 for a standard rotary desk or wall model, to $54.95 for a Trimline Touch-Tone.

Will there be any change in making calls?
No. You can still make local or long-distance calls, and you will still be billed for them in the same way.

And if I have other questions?
"Let's Talk" hot line is 800-555-5000.

Arthur Morgan, Retiring Early from Princeton Bank, Reflects on Varied New York and Princeton Careers

Arthur P. Morgan, executive vice president and a member of the board of Princeton Bank, has taken early retirement from the bank as of December 31.

Retirement -- even early retirement -- does not seem applicable to this tall, dark and handsome man who for the past 18 years regularly rode his bicycle into work, first at Clark Dodge and since 1975 to Princeton Bank. And in truth, he won't really be retired, for he has been invited by his son-in-law (how many fathers of married daughters can claim such an honor?) to be associated with him in the small three-man, Princeton-based investment banking firm.

Arthur P. Morgan
A Multifaceted Career

Seated in amidst packing boxes on New Year's Eve in an office stripped of all but one of his favorite paintings, Mr. Morgan reminisced on a career in which he was fortuitously at the right place at the most interesting time. He was born in Princeton, son of the architect Sherley Morgan, and grew up on Hodge Road.

He attended, successively, Miss Fine's School, Princeton Country Day School, Deerfield Academy and Princeton University, class of 1944, but graduated cum laude in 1946 after service in the Army.

After graduation he went to work for E.R. Squibb in the foreign side of operations and after marrying his wife Millicent in 1947 spent seven years in Latin America. The Morgans lived in Cuba, Mexico, Uruguay (where daughter Anne was born), Argentina (where Cathy joined the family) before returning to Princeton in 1954 where Ceci, the youngest Morgan daughter, was born in Princeton Medical Center.

New York Commuter. Commuting to Squibb in New York for five years, he "ran into" Dean Mathey, Chairman of the Empire Trust Co. (now the Bank of New York) and a fellow Princeton resident, who invited him to join the foreign side of that bank. For several years he was involved in the bank's oil and gas interests in a subsidiary that eventually became bigger than the bank itself. From there he joined Vick Chemical (later Richard Merrill) and ran its acquisition program until 1964, when he made a major decision to give up the daily commute to New York and business trips around the country in favor of being home with his family and biking to work.

He took the training course to become a registered stock broker and joined the new office of Clark Dodge on Nassau Street where he remained until 1975 when he joined Princeton Bank & Trust Co. as vice president in charge of the Trust Department. He was promoted to senior vice-president in December 1977 and executive vice president in September, 1978, when he was elected to the board of directors.

Mr. Morgan will keep his membership on the board of directors of Princeton Bank and of Horizon Trust Company, the holding Company. He is also a director of the Elizabethtown Water Company.

Growth Industries. Reflecting on his multi-faceted career, Mr. Morgan says, "I was fortunate to be involved in three areas in which tremendous changes were taking place just at the time I was there." The pharmaceutical business, for instance, was just coming out of what he calls the brown-jar-on-the-shelf-period when he joined Squibb. It was antibiotics, he says, which had been the major thrust of research, that subsequently built pharmaceutical companies into huge enterprises.

Similarly he remembers that when he entered the brokerage business, the 3-5 million shares traded on an average day soared to 42 million shares the day John F. Kennedy was killed and today has surpassed 100 million shares. He remembers "May Day," the moment of the deregulation of brokerage commissions which in turn led to the discount brokerage business.

"Go-go funds, gunslingers, kids trading hundreds of thousands of shares, the crash of 1968, the taking over of the market by the institutional buyer -- that industry exploded from one that was dominated by guys who typically went to Yale and Harvard to one taken over by guys who had never heard of Yale and Harvard," Mr. Morgan comments.

The same thing will happen in banks, he predicts, as the full effort of de-regulation is felt. Battle lines that were clearly drawn between banks and brokerage houses are becoming blurred, he says, and bankers are having a very tough time coming out from under regulations and being thrown into the marketplace. Banks are suddenly having their cost of inventory double or triple as they go from giving zero interest on checking accounts to paying any interest rate they wish.

At Princeton Bank, for instance, when de-regulation went into effect on December 15, the Insure Market Plus Account (IMPA) was offered as a new type of account offering 12 percent interest. As it was designed to do, IMPA took in $18 million in two weeks, of which 42 percent was "new money" which the bank didn't have before and the balance was transferred from other types of accounts within the bank.

Future of Banking. Princeton Bank expects to follow the lead of other banks and offer discount brokerage service, beginning in the first quarter of 1983, Mr. Morgan says. He expects that one result of the de-regulations in banking will be mergers; small rural banks that can't pay will be forced to merge. And he foresees interstate banking, which is now prohibited by law but in fact is already taking place.

Along with his business career, Mr. Morgan was actively involved in civic and community affairs. He was a member of Borough Council from 1971-75, chairman of the Borough Planning Board, vice chairman of the Princeton Day School board of trustees, and a member of the most recent Joint Consolidation Study Commission. One observer remembers the extraordinary tact and wisdom he showed in handling demonstrators during the Vietnam conflict when he was serving as Borough Police Commissioner.

To his joy, at Princeton Bank's Christmas Party, which was also his retirement dinner, he was presented, not the traditional gold watch, but a brand new 10-speed bicycle. He will be pedalling it to 195 Nassau Street, to the office of Tucker Capital Corporation, founded last March by daughter Anne's husband, Craig Battle, with a Philadelphia lawyer.

He was told his son-in-law that he will answer the phone or help put deals together but at times strictly of his own choosing. It sounds like an ideal retirement, for a man of his experience and background.

—Barbara L. Johnson

FREE GOSPEL CONCERT at Nassau Christian Center. Merrill Womach, vocalist, recording artist and inspirational communicator, will appear in concert at Nassau Christian Center on Sunday, at 10:30.

Mr. Womach is known for his four-octave voice with which he has performed before audiences all across the United States and in many foreign countries.

He is also known for his ability to inspire and uplift with his singing, perhaps as the result of extraordinary circumstances in his life.

On Thanksgiving Day 1961, the twin engine airplane he was piloting crashed and exploded in a massive ball of fire.

Burned beyond recognition Mr. Womach has nevertheless come back not only to fly his own airplane again but also to sing again – with a new face, fashioned by more than 60 skin grafts and with a voice that critics say is better than before the accident.

During his concert he will share many of the experiences relating to his recovery.

The Nassau Christian Center is located at Nassau and Chambers Streets. For more information on this free Gospel concert, call 921-0981.

LET'S TALK ABOUT

RENEWAL PLAN X 3
with Sam DeTuro
Woodwinds Associates

Sooner or later most of your shrubs and trees need pruning to help their appearance, health and also to assist in abundant flowering.

For those who have large, unruly, overgrown shrubs, such as forsythia, might we suggest a three year plan. In late winter, consider removing one third of the largest branches, pruning near the base of the shrub. The following two years, cut out the second and remaining growth in the same manner. The third year repeat. Each year you will lose some flower buds, but in the end you will have a virtually new shrub.

Pruning of smaller branches is helpful, to create a cleaner more sculptural form. In some cases, cut back to the next large branch or to an outward facing bud. Don't leave stubs. The ideal time to prune spring-flowering plants, like lilac, spirea and most viburnums is right after flowering. Sometimes, the ideal time of year is not always the most practical. If your shrubs are in a thick tangle, prune in late winter or early spring while other garden tasks are not pressing and before new leaves appear.

Summer bloomers, (Rose of Sharon, Peegee hydrangeas, etc.) should be pruned sometime between February and early April. Pruning of the common hydrangea should be restricted to removal of the dead shoots and occasional branch.

To bring about vigorous new growth consider deep root feeding in spring. Call WOODWINDS (924-3500) to discuss our Annual Maintenance Program.

NEW LISTING

A Contemporary Cape Cod? Though this may appear a contradiction in terms, this architect designed country house while not without a very modern flavor, decidedly has roots in coastal Massachusetts. Large playroom with fireplace in the basement. Shaded deck and sparkling Sylvan pool accessible from living room and master bedroom. Two-car garage. On three quarters of a wooded acre in northwest Princeton Township. $275,000

Exhaustive Deliberations Led to Planning Board's Approval Of Collins Development's Plans for Expanding Palmer Square

In a final, exhausted spasm ten days before the end of the year, the Planning Board laid out its conditions, and then gave preliminary site-plan approval to Collins Development for the corporation's ideas on expanding Palmer Square.

It had taken six nights of hearings.

Underlying the series of votes taken in those pre-midnight hours at the sixth meeting, lay a foundation as carefully constructed as any Collins itself will build.

Not that it was a pre-cast job. Ornery, independent, stubborn — volunteers who serve on Princeton boards vote the way they want to, sometimes changing their minds during the evening or pondering so long before the "yes" or "no" that the teller asks again, to make sure the board member heard.

At that last meeting, board members used as a base for discussion a list of 16 conditions drawn up by board chairman Hans K. Sander, board vice-chairman Elizabeth Hutter and the board's lawyer for this particular hearing, Alan Lavine. (A Palmer Square tenant, the board's regular lawyer, Allen Porter, disqualified himself for this application.)

Work Session Recalled. Presumably, they also had in the forefront of their thoughts a work-session held many months ago by Mr. Sander because there were so many new people on the board.

Hans Sander, an architect by profession, a Planning Board member by avocation, has been on Princeton's joint Borough-Township (Regional) Planning Board since it was formed 13 years ago, and was chairman of the Township Planning Board before that.

It is an unshakable article of faith with Mr. Sander that the site plan review ordinance and the zoning ordinance are locked together:

"It's not just complying with zoning regulations on floor-area ratio, bulk or setback. Value-judgments must be made and site-plan review is terribly important. We must consider 'quality' along with 'quantity.' Both zoning and site-plan are functional, and should both be examined in a strong way. And we have the legal underpinning to do this."

Three Met Earlier. The three — Sander, Hutter and Lavine — met together once, and blocked out the 16. Mr. Lavine provided the legal phrasing. Then, over the week-end before the Monday night hearing, the writing was done.

The document wasn't typed until Monday, and Collins' lawyer, Thomas C. Jamieson, protested that he hadn't had a chance to look it over. Neither, in fact, had many on the board that night.

"The first four Collins hearings were nothing but input — from Collins and the opponents," Mr. Sander points out. "At the fifth meeting, I said to the board, 'Well, let's go around and make our comments' and this became the preliminary list.

"Last time we had a Collins application, we'd gotten bogged down in phrasing and it took forever! All of us English-literature majors up there, trying to find just the right word — well!

16 Conditions Prepared. "So we prepared these 16 conditions. It wasn't just a list, not just a parliamentary motion: there was a rationale behind each one."

"In July of '81, we'd prepared a memo and the issues haven't changed in those 18 months.

"We'd said there were two key features in the original Palmer Square plan that are still valid. One is the fine street alignment — a strong, street-building line you get by the intersection of the sidewalk with each individual building wall.

"You know how you walk down the west side of Palmer Square all the way to Hulfish — it's a major pedestrian circulation design. And we disagree with Collins, that the approach is through Tiger Park.

"The second feature is open space. And we wanted to keep those two elements within the framework of Collins' proposals."

"Green" Important. According to Mr. Sander, the "Green" across from the post office was the most important thing before the Planning Board.

"If we could keep a big chunk of green," he explained "then the back plaza, at the foot of Palmer Square West was less important. If the lantern building remained then we'd have to give more attention to the size of the back plaza."

After the Sander-Hutter-Lavine meeting, Borough Mayor Robert W. Cawley suggested to Mr. Sander that it would speed the approval process to select those items in the list of 16 that practically everyone on the board agreed on.

"It was a good idea," Mr. Sander nods. "It got things off to a good start."

Lantern Building Unpopular. One of the items most board members had apparently agreed on, was the lantern building across from the post office. From the first, that lantern had made many uncomfortable and a desire for uptown "Open space" seemed, in the end, to be a major concern: only two of the eight Planning Board members present at that final meeting, voted to let Collins have its lantern.

An alarm went off, in the view of Mr. Sander and board members, when Douglas Godine, Collins' marketing consultant, began talking about "double-loading."

This is marketing talk for stores on both sides of a street. Planning Board members began to have visions of a row of stores north from the lantern to the present "greenhouse" restaurant, and north from that, all the way to Hulfish.

"We disagree with Collins about double-loading," Mr. Sander says.

"Palmer Square is a park with a hotel set in it. Look at all the successful places that don't have double-loading: Rittenhouse Square in Philadelphia; the square at Jackson, Wyoming; Savannah.....These are no'

A-BUILDING: The feather in the hat of this Palmer Square kiosk is Yankee Doodle himself, reproduced from the figure in the Nassau Inn painting by Norman Rockwell. The kiosk is tne first Collins "construction" for the Square, unless you count the re-design of Tiger Park, and like all future constructions, it required Planning Board approval. The kiosk will be a newsstand and information center for Princeton visitors.

News Of The THEATRES

NEW, AT MCCARTER

"The Day They Shot John Lennon, Picking up the season after the holidays, McCarter Theatre will present a new play by James McLure, "The Day They Shot John Lennon."

It will open in preview Wednesday, January 19 with opening night January 21.

The playwright lived across from The Dakota, the New York City apartment house where the Lennons lived and where John was shot. Living where he did, he was able to be part of the crowd and watch it first-hand. Much of the play's dialogue, therefore, comes from what McLure actually heard.

There are nine characters in the play, all of them part of the crowd gathered outside The Dakota to mourn Lennon. The set, according to designer Dan Boylen, was inspired by a George Segal sculpture, "Walk, Don't Walk." Like the sculpture, the set will have a traffic light and a "Walk, Don't Walk" sign.

With lighting designer Richard Moore, Dan Boylen has done a curved backdrop to suggest the sky and Central Park. It can be lit or dimmed as weather changes and time passes.

Director Robert Lanchester asked members of the cast for their own ideas about wardrobe, and the costumes designed by Sue Rheaume, while realistic, evoke each character's life style.

" 'The Day They Shot John Lennon' is an interesting directorial challenge for me, personally," Mr. Lanchester says, adding that he has asked the cast to consider "the crowd" as the tenth character in the play, and study the relationship of a particular character to the crowd itself.

The play was given a staged reading last year in the Playwrights-at-McCarter series. It has since been revised. Mr. McLure was present at the read-through of the script, held last week, and he told the actors about his inspiration for writing the play.

"It was a rare opportunity,"

he said, "to bring a cross-section of Americans on stage."

JUST IMAGINE....

At Puppet Show. The imagination of the audience is a key element in the puppet shows of the Philippe Genty company, due at McCarter this Saturday at 8.

For example — a balloon dying of laughter, an all-too-human puppet who asks his master to let him live without strings. And the "Ostrich Ballet!"

McCarter has been pointing out that the Genty production is by no means "just a children's show." Audiences of all ages in many countries have exercised their imaginations at the Genty productions, which feature animal and human characters with considerable imagination themselves.

CLASSIC, MODERN

ABT II Does Both. American Ballet Theatre II was formed in 1972 to provide quality dance for cities that could not afford the parent company, the American Ballet Theatre. In the decade since, it has appeared in 174 cities in 40 states and seven foreign countries, performing a repertory ranging from romantic and classic ballet to contemporary works.

The dancers will appear in McCarter Theatre on Tuesday and Wednesday, January 25 and 26 at 8 p.m. It is the second event in the season's dance series.

Over the years, the company has provided the first professional experiences for many of the country's best dancers. Alumni now appear with the Joffrey, the New York City Ballet, Alvin Ailey, the National Ballet of Canada and, of course, the parent company.

DANCING — AND LIFE

At 15, he interrupted his studies at the School of American Ballet to earn a B.S. degree at the New York Maritime Academy, where he won varsity letters in baseball and welterweight boxing. He joined the New York City Ballet in 1957 and became a principal dancer there in 1960. He has danced at the Bolshoi in Moscow, and was the first American male dancer to appear with the Royal Danish Ballet.

PLANNING OPERA AUDITIONS: From left, Dr. Wade Stephens, Mrs. Irene Farley, Mrs. Ernestine Ruben and Mrs. Cynthia Lake are members of the committee preparing for the forthcoming Metropolitan Opera Regional Auditions to be held Saturday, January 22, from 9 to 5 in the Kirby Arts Center at the Lawrenceville School. The auditions are open to the public.

MUSIC In Princeton

DATE ANNOUNCED

Of Met Opera Auditions. The annual Metropolitan Opera Regional Auditions will be held in the Kirby Arts Center of the Lawrenceville School on Saturday, January 22, from 9 to 5. Opera fans are welcome.

The purpose of the auditions is to find exceptionally talented young opera singers and to assist them in their development. Singers must live in New Jersey and be in the 20-35 age bracket. The winners will be announced at the end of the session on January 22.

They will then compete in February at the Eastern Regionals to be held in New York City. Winners of the Eastern Regionals will share in a cash award and appear in the National Semi-Finals at the Metropolitan Opera House in mid-March. Those who are selected to enter the National Finals will be presented in late March in the Metropolitan Opera House and will receive a $5,000 study grant.

'YEOMAN' PLANNED

By Musical Amateurs. After a five years' absence, Gilbert and Sullivan will return to the repertoire of the Princeton Society of Musical Amateurs when the group to sing "Yeoman of the Guard" on Sunday afternoon, January 16 at the Unitarian Church, Cherry Hill Road and Route 206.

The conductor will be Gilbert and Sullivan specialist Robert W. Jones, former assistant to the president of Westminster Choir College, who will return here for the occasion from his present home in California. The session will start promptly at 3 with a rehearsal for the chorus. At 4, joined by orchestra and principals, "Yeoman" will begin.

The principals, who will speak comic and dramatic lines as well as singing, will be Winifred Livesay, Cynthia Lake, Susan Rodgers, Michelle Disco, Thomas Graves, Bruce Turner, John Woodeard, Donald Sheasley, Robert Thick, and Alan Seale.

As is true whenever the Musical Amateurs sing, this is not a performance. Of particular appeal to Gilbert and Sullivan fanciers, it is open to all choral singing enthusiasts for whom no auditions are required, though modest sight-reading ability is helpful.

There is a small charge for those without yearly membership in the Society to cover music and refreshment costs. Students are admitted free. For further information call Mrs. Melvin Gottlieb at 921-7214.

auditorium at Princeton Day School.

The Blue Hill Troupe of New York City, one of the foremost Gilbert Sullivan ensembles in the country, has offered to present a performance of "Trial by Jury" and excerpts from "Princess Ida" as part of the evening's entertainment. The Westminster Singers, conducted by Allen Crowell, one of the college's five performing choirs, will also present part of its current tour program for the benefit. A party at the Nassau Club, with George Gallup III as master of ceremonies, will follow.

The participation of the Blue Hill Troupe is being organized by Howard McMorris II, a member of the Troupe and also on the board of trustees of the Choir College. The Troupe has been giving performances of Gilbert and Sullivan since 1924 and each year selects a worthy cause of organization for which it donates the proceeds of its performances.

The Westminster Singers will have just concluded their first tour to Florida and the South. This is the newest of the Westminster ensembles and is geared to secular music in a lighter vein than the other Westminster Choirs.

Patrons and subscriber tickets are $50 and $25 and are deductible up to the extent of the law.

SINGERS INVITED

To Join Rutgers Chorus. The Rutgers Musica Sacra mixed chorus is now holding auditions for its spring season.

Membership is open to the general community as well as Rutgers students, faculty and staff. The main presentation will be Handel's dramatic oratorio "Saul," based on the story of David, Goliath and King Saul, to be performed on May 1 at Nicholas Music Center.

In March the 90-voice chorus will participate in the two-day international conference commemorating the 300th anniversary of the French Baroque composer, Jean-Philippe Rameau. The climax of the conference will be the Musica Sacra's performance of Rameau't large motets for chorus and orchestra, with the orchestra playing original Baroque instruments. The group will also act as the chorus in scenes from Rameau's operas, which will be staged with dances and gestures recreated from the period.

Rutgers Musica Sacra is conducted by Barbara Lingelbach, Associate Professor, Mason Gross School of the Arts, Rutgers University. For audition information call (201) 545-1015.

Now everything you've always wanted for less... is less.

Our Annual Sale—
December 26 to January 31
when almost everything is 10% to 40% off regular prices.

From Scandinavia and made exclusively for us, our Tivoli storage units in oak, teak or walnut veneers. We've shown only a few—there are many other coordinated pieces. As shown: 2 wide base cabinets $69 ea. reg. $80 ea.; 2 wide top cabinets $59 ea. reg. $70 ea.; 4 wide drawers $27 ea. reg. $30 ea.; double glass doors $59 reg. $65; double doors $39 reg. $45.

At Workbench, we don't have lots of storewide sales. Just one a year. But it's a dilly. Because we mark down all our best stuff. Not just a few things. Not even just a lot of things. But almost everything.

And mark down is all we do. Because, unlike a lot of other places, we don't bring in so-called specials or things no one wants or that were over-priced in the first place. At Workbench we just go through the store with our red pencil and slash prices. Which means that right now you'll find Workbench's best at 10% to 40% less than you'd expect to pay.

Our Star storage system in white lacquer finish. Choose tall pieces or short stackable units. Then add accessories. As shown, narrow base cabinet $58.50 reg. $65, narrow top cabinet $54 reg. $60, wide base cabinet $72 reg. $80, wide top cabinet $67.50 reg. $75; single door $27 reg. $30, 3 wide deep drawers $72 for set reg. $80 for set, double doors $43 reg. $48.

That's right, 10% to 40% off on butcher block tables, upholstery, storage systems, bookcases, carts, music benches, desks and chair after chair after chair. Even the already reduced "Foreign Policy" prices on most of our imports have been further price cut for this sale.

Of course, there are a few things currently oversold that we can't put on sale. But, odds are, the great things you've been promising yourself to get are here.

Is there a catch? Only time. Because we have only one storewide sale a year. And it lasts only until January 31. So hurry. Because if you wait too long, you'll have to wait a whole year for our sale to come around again. And that's more time than anyone should spend waiting to spend less.

Pike's Speech

Mr. Cherry's second three year term expires at the end of 1983. Mrs. Firestone has completed the first year of her first term.

In parcelling out departmental assignments among the five Committee members, Mayor Pike kept Administration, Public Safety and the Joint Public Library as his responsiblities and added Civil Defense and Disaster Control, which had been in Mr. Cherry's portfolio. Mr. Cherry will continue to oversee Health, Flood Control and Water Quality, and Municipal Liaison with the Board of Education. He was assigned Welfare and Traffic Safety as new responsibilities.

Winthrop Pike

Mrs. Firestone will take on Taxation and Finance, previously the province of Mr. Adriance, and will continue to serve on the Recreation Board, the Commission on Aging and the Intergovernmental Drug Committee. Mrs. Cantrill was assigned Civil Rights, Historic Sites, the Environmental Commission and Transportation.

Mr. Schoch will sit on the Planning Board in Mr. Adriance's place and have responsibility for Building and Zoning, Engineering and Public Works and Waste Management.

Committee approved a list of appointments to boards and commissions, most of whom are re-appointments. Exceptions include Eric Wood of 227 Valley Road, an associate professor of civil engineering at Princeton University and director of the Program in Water Resources, and Harry L. Cooke of 144 Sycamore Road, appointed to succeed George C. Alexander on the Local Assistance Board.

David W. Blair, former Democratic Committeeman, was named to the Joint Commission on Civil Right, and Olivia Applegate of Random Road who has been particularly outspoken on the sewer problems in her area, was appointed to the Environmental Commission.

Three Concerns for 1983. Looking ahead to 1983, the mayor called attention to three matters which Township Committee may consider. The first of these is the current level of the deer population, which he acknowledged is to arouse strong feelings on the part of many residents.

Citing figures from a paper published by John Kuser and Leonard Wolgast of the Department of Horticulture and Forestry at Cook College, Mr. Pike said that in 1972, the last year in which the Township had a legal shotgun deer season, there were 33 reported collisions between deer and automobiles in the Township. That year Committee adopted a new law prohibiting the discharge of firearms in the Township.

As a result, the mayor says, the deer have multiplied and the number of deer-auto collisions has steadily grown until, in 1981, there were 113 such incidents reported, an increase of more than 300 percent. Reasoning that deer roadkill trends are a measure of deer population changes, Mr. Kuser and Mr. Wolgast suggest that Princeton's deer population has increased between three and fourfold in nine years.

Mayor Pike noted that, according to the Township Police Department, no resident has ever been reported injured by a hunter's bullet in Princeton Township, and that deer cause considerable monetary damage to homeowners' gardens and shrubs. "Many remedies have been suggested, some scientifically feasible and humane but very expensive. The best solution, in our opinion, and certainly the least expensive, would be repeal of the ordinance," he suggested.

If the Township's ban on discharge of firearms was to be repealed, state regulations on deer hunting would then be in effect. These include a six-day shotgun season for buck deer only, normally held the first or second week of December and a special permit day in which hunters holding special permits may kill deer of either sex – the purpose being to reduce the size of the herd. There are additional state regulations which forbid the discharge of firearms within 450 yards of an occupied dwelling or school playground. Moreover, under state rules firearms may not be discharged across, from or on a state, county or municipal road.

Progress on Sewers. Continuing his look ahead for 1983, Mayor Pike noted that "gratifying" progress has been made toward reducing infiltration into the "aged and leaky" sewer system through the mechanism of a sewer trust fund to which builders may contribute in order to receive allocations of sewer capacity for building projects.

But progress is slow, he said, and ther are several main trunk lines which periodically overflow, discharging sewer into the backyards of Township residents.

A succession of governing bodies has postponed the raising by bond issue the "rather considerable capital funds needed to correct the problem. "I'd like to see this corrected by appropriate bonding in 1983," the mayor stated.

Another matter raised in the mayor's remarks is the lawsuits filed jointly against the Planning Board and Township Committee as a result of Master Plan zoning changes. In 1982, the legal budget for defense against these actions was about one quarter of a million dollars, Mr. Pike said. "That amount could fix a lot of roads, more amply fund the library or even make a little dent in the sewer problem."

However, he added that he thinks there is room for "cautious optimism" that, given a "spirit of compromise on both sides," some of these lawsuits might be resolved during the coming year.

Summary of 1982. In summarizing the year just past, Mayor Pike reported that during 1982, Township Committee enacted 32 ordinances, of which 20 were regulatory and 12 were bond ordinances. As a mark of progress the mayor cited the overturning by the Public Utilities Commission of an earlier ruling by an administrative law judge which halted progess on the Township's Cable TV system. Home Link, the franchise holder, is now proceeding with its plans for Cable TV installation in Princeton, and operation is expected to begin around the third quarter of 1983, Mayor Pike said.

There was progress, too, in resolving the funding of hazardous routes busing through 1983 by a committee appointed to study the matter and in the creation of a committee to advise the First Aid and Rescue Squad on financial matters. The Dinky Project has also made progress, Mayor Pike said, with the completion of a traffic study and some preliminary sketches and models.

Turning Basin Park was completed. Herrontown Road was reconstructed, and the intersection at Mercer and Quaker Roads was redesigned and "appears to be working much better than it did previously," the mayor said.

On the negative side, the mayor listed the partial destruction of the recycling shed in the Shopping Center and the closing of the Province Line Road bridge over Stony Brook by the County. Bridges such as this are the specific responsibility of the County," he pointed out, "and we are powerless to do anything about the closing, despite the considerable inconvenience to citizens in the area served by it.

Airport Loss. Another loss the mayor felt, one that directly affects many Princeton residents but is not under the Township's control, is the cancellation of the Princeton Airways commuter service. He told his audience that Montgomery Township is studying the feasibility of purchasing the airport.

Mayor Pike paid tribute to Joseph R. Nini, Township Adminstrator who has announced his intention to retire in 1983. "His vast experience and reasoned judgment will be greatly missed by all of us," the mayor said, recalling that Josie Hall often said that working with Joe Nini is like taking a graduate level course in local government.

Personnel changes in 1982 included the retirement of Olive Hance, Township treasurer, and her replacement by John Clawson. Frederic Porter, Township Police Chief, also retired and was succeeded by Anthony Pinelli. Eleanor Brunner, secretary to the Zoning Board, retired, and her place was taken by Joanne Just.

Mildred (Mitzie) Fiumenero transferred from the post of Deputy Clerk to the Administrator's office and was replaced by Marlys Shroyer. Sergeant Michael Kopliner of the Township Police Department retired, and his position has not yet been filled, the mayor said. Elizabeth Watson, for many years that "pleasant" voice on the Clerk's office telephone, also retired, and her position is also unfilled.

Resignations included Walter Wheeler, Township Engineer, a position not yet filled, and Elizabeth Eisenstadt, Crosstown '62 Coordinator, whose place has been taken by Molly Jacobs.

Township Committee, in consultation with Chief Pinelli, appointed David Leiggi, Donna McGlory, Jerry Sullivan and Janice Williams as civilian dispatchers in the Township Police. "This action releases patrolmen for other duties," the mayor noted, has economic advantages and appears to be working very nicely."

if you think a tax-sheltered IRA is more than you can afford – THINK AGAIN!

If you thought that you had to invest $500, $1,000 or $2,000 each year in an IRA – think again! With our AFFORDABLE IRA you can contribute as little as $10 or less weekly, and still enjoy the tax-sheltered benefits of an IRA. Anyone who is gainfully employed is eligible, even those covered by an employer pension plan.

Naturally, you can contribute more than $10 weekly whenever you please. Contributions up to $2,000 annually are allowed, or up to $2,250 if your spouse does not earn outside income. Contributions are tax deductible and earned interest is tax deferred until you start to withdraw (between 59½ and 70½) when most people are in a lower tax bracket.

Reduce your income taxes!

Your IRA contributions actually reduce your taxable income during a given year. Let's say that you are in the 25% tax bracket and contribute $1,000 to your IRA. You deduct the $1,000 contribution on your federal tax form; your tax is reduced by $250. The net cost of your IRA is $750. In effect, you keep an additional $250 of your hard-earned money.

Open your AFFORDABLE IRA at Nassau Savings, today!

Start the profitable IRA habit at the Nassau Savings office nearest you. It's easy, all you need do is • open with a contribution of $10 or more • follow up, whenever you desire, in person or by mail • there's no minimum contribution and you need not make contributions every week • you can make contributions for any wage-earning year up until you file your federal income tax return (by April 15th) the following calendar year.

You'll be pleasantly surprised how fast your IRA will grow into a large nest egg with highest interest compounded daily. Remember, the younger you start, the more you will have for a financially secure future retirement.

Cawley Examines Conflict of Interest in New Year's Day Speech

For some time I have been bothered by what I see as a confusing, often emotional issue of appearance of conflict of interest or appearance of impropriety. This issue was brought dramatically to our local attention as a result of the appeal by Storer of the Princeton Township cable TV decision.

Storer alleged an improper relationship arose because a representative of the successful cable TV applicant was a member of the Township Zoning Board - even though the Zoning Board had played no role in the matter. Fortunately, that allegation was repudiated by the Public Utilities Commission.

The general problem is that appearance of conflict of interest and appearance of impropriety are wide ranging in scope and without definition; limited, it would appear, only by the imagination of the instigator to concoct improper relationships.

Appearance is in the eye of the beholder. The concern is the unfairness of damage to an official's reputation - because the public often assigns guilt - where there are no guidelines. This is especially unfair with volunteer officials putting in long hours which is the rule with municipal government. Further, the possibility of such an attack is one more deterrent to citizens accepting public office.

Robert W. Cawley

Basic to the issue, there is a very simple clear objective for behavior of officials: each shall approach public actions with no interests other than the public interest. Further, the credibility of public officials and indeed for the entire government depends on the public believing that public actions are free of taint of the intrusions of "private" interests.

To understand the appearance problem, one must first understand what could be termed 'real' conflicts of interest. These are rather narrow - being limited to cases where the official has a direct self-interest in the public matter or where there is an indirect interest such as by reason of the officials employment relationship, or other organizational relationship or family relationship.

In the case of direct interest there is no room for question. For example, if the official has an interest in a property that is involved in some public matter, that is a conflict. Also typically, individuals who own property within 200 feet of the property involved in a development application before them will declare they have a conflict. Absentation from participation in the public matter is absolutely required.

In indirect interests it is not quite so clear. Whether a conflict exists depends on the situation - on how much the public matter would affect the indirect interest and on the closeness or remoteness of the relationship.

1960 Decision Voided. A local example of indirect interest was the 1960 case of Griggs vs. Borough of Princeton. The court voided a Borough Council decision to declare a downtown area 'blighted', finding that several members of Council had employment conflicts, as professors at Princeton University. The University was the principal stockholder of Palmer Square, Incorporated which would benefit from the 'blighted' designation. The argument that the professors' tenured status gave them an independence that significantly diluted the employment relationship was not accepted by the court.

On the other hand, small stock holdings in a national corporation with public stock ownership would likely not create a conflict if a unit of that corporation were to appear before the local officials.

What defines a 'real' conflict of interest is that there is a specific situation with facts that link an official's private interests that a reasonable person might believe the official could be swayed from the public interest. Emphasis is on the facts and on the specificity of the situation. No room for speculation about the facts and no blanket assumption of conflict should be permitted.

The simplicity of these 'real' conflicts lies in the fact that officials usually recognize the possibility and the attorneys they then consult give good advice. That advice may vary a bit. If the public matter is serious and litigation a possibility the advice will be suitably conservative. Absent those two conditions, the advice may be less conservative.

One test that has been mentioned is: If you have to ask 'is there a conflict of interest?' there probably is one!

One Exception. There is one exception to the rule of abstention. If the public action cannot be taken without the participation of those with conflicts - because of quorum number of voting number requirements - abstention is not required. That points up a very important point: the laws and decisions on conflict of interest are a balance between the ideal of complete absence of even the remotest conflict of interest versus the practical realities of running an efficient government.

The appearance of conflict of interest problem is its lack of both definition and limitation.

My concern is for two serious trends. One is toward extending appearances of conflict of interest or appearanced of impropriety to even a larger scope. The other is demanding that in many cases mere abstention on a specific action is not sufficient; only a prohibition against holding the office will do.

To demonstrate those two factors, let us take Princeton University and speculate that those who would have an improper relationship would include not only officials, faculty and empoyees but also all alumni and in addition all those who have business relations with the University. One could even add spouses of empoyees. If one then prohibited all those from serving in any capacity, the two Princeton municipal governments would find a great reduction in people available to serve.

By Anja Chance. "Loom-shaped" garments of hand-spun, hand-dyed wool form the major part of an exhibit of weavings by Anja Chance which will open with a reception this Sunday from 4 to 6 in the Dorothy Brown Room of the University League.

An active member of the Weavers Guild, Ms. Chance has given demonstrations and showed her crafts widely in New Jersey. Her current interest focuses on fashion design, and the loom-shaped garments are an aspect of that interest.

The artist grew up in the Netherlands, and began on a small child's loom. She moved to Princeton in 1972, and has studied with Albertje Koopman and Patricia White.

The exhibit will be open to the public week-days from 9 to 11 a.m. through February 11. Details on the exhibit and its location may be obtained by calling 452-3560.

Cawley's Speech

You think that preposterous? Well, I believe that within that blanket scope of relationships one could easily concoct specific examples of real conflicts - depending on the circumstances for each group of relationships. One can readily, if uncritical, extend that to all in each group. "Alumni," you question?

Well I can say that I know Planning Board members who have abstained from hearing an application involving their church when they held no church office but were merely contributing financially. Are University alumni that different in a legal conflict sense? I have to say that I think those church related abstentions were not required.

Who Should Hold Office? With respect to prohibitions to holding offices instead of abstentions on specific matters, I may be reaching a bit. But I know that some citizens believe that certain Univeristy people should not hold municipal office. Indeed, there are certain statutory prohibitions on holding dual offices. Members of Zoning Boards and citizen members of Planning Boards (which excludes elected governing body members) are prohibited by law from holding other municipal offices.

that architects should not be members of boards that review development applications. But I believe it is far better to accept an occasional abstention from a Planning or Zoning Board member who happens to be an architect or site engineer than for the public to miss that expertise.

Let us go back to our prime objective: officials should act only in the public interest without intrusions of private interest. On that score I can say that that is exactly the way officials have acted in Princeton. Further, Princeton officials I have known have been scrupulous in seeking legal advice when they have sensed a possible conflict and in abstaining when so advised.

Therefore, my perception is that the only problem is with appearances of conflict, not the real thing. I agree that public perceptions are vitally important but the public should be made aware that the chief concern is with real conflicts. We all need to avoid speculations about situations and blanket assessments.

These trends I worry about are the result of a citizenry that is uneducated about conflicts and is perhaps now more suspicious about public officials - combined with a legal profession that is becoming much more cautious.

As an indication of the trend, while that Township cable TV appeal turned out fine in the end, an Administrative Law Judge had earlier ruled there was an "apearance of impropriety" and recommended the Township rehear the whole matter even though that was the only issue. Happily, the Public Utilities Commission had enough sense not to accept that recommendation."

There are some impractical ways to minimize potential conflicts. If all officials received their chief source of income from the municipality, the potential of employment related conflicts would be substantially reduced - but a ridiculous cost to taxpayers who rely heavily on volunteers. I've already discussed the equally impractical idea of prohibiting all those with University connections from serving.

These ideas just serve to show how impractical would be perfect protection from conflicts of interest.

My conclusion is the only fair and practical answer is to examine fully in a completely factual way each case of appearance of conflict of interest. From looking at the factual situation one can evaluate whether or not there is a 'real' or 'legal' conflict of interest. Doing the analysis takes some effort but is is the only way to dispose of vague allegations. It is therefore the duty of all citizens and especially of officials, to see that all allegations of appearance of conflict are fully examined - and the officials involved informed - so that the public can see that our officials do act in the public interest only.

In the confidence that our officials act only in the public interest we should resist scare and suspcision and not allow expansion of appearance of conflict of interest.

The most important change occurring now is the departure from Council of Nelson van den Blink whose hard work and willingness to take on almost any job will be sorely missed. We all wish her well in taking her talents to the private sector.

This is the time once again to thank Mark Gordon, our Administrator, Penney Carter, our Clerk, all Borough employees and all our volunteer board members for their work in 1982.

IVY RACE TO BEGIN

For Princeton Quintet. Seeking to unseat Pennsylvania from its spot as Ivy League champion, the Princeton basketball team will play its first two league contests this weekend.

Brown will be the opponent Friday evening in Jadwin, with Yale following on Saturday. Tip-off for both games will be 8 p.m.

Princeton and Penn are the only Ivy teams to begin 1983 with winning records. Brown has won just twice in eight outings, and Yale is 3-4. Chances are however, both games will be tightly played, without a lot of points scored in either game. A year ago, the Tigers managed to beat Yale twice, but lost to the Bruins in Providence, 58-53.

The Tigers enter the second half of their season with a 6-5 record, and seemingly in better shape than a year ago. Although one would have to wonder after the way they played over the Christmas break.

After opening with a strong showing, and a 67-39 victory over Weber State in the opening round of the Lobo Classic in New Mexico, they lost their shooting touch from both the field and the foul line the next two games.

In the championship game against New Mexico, they were cold and uncertain on the way to a 52-46 defeat. Against Brigham Young on New Year's Eve, they were absolutely awful, losing 51-32, scoring just 12 points in the first half.

They made just 14 baskets in 65 attempts on the night, and only four of 15 from the foul line. Nobody could find the basket; Bill Ryan and Kevin Mullen were each 0 for 7, Gordon Enderle, 2 for 9, Rich Simkus, 2 for 6, Craig Robinson, 5 for 13, and John Smyth, 2 for 14. Robinson finished with 13 points, no one else had more than four.

Coach Pete Carril is hoping to get that game as far behind him as possible and wants his players to do the same thing. "What I have to do this week is restore the positive attitude we had before those last two games," he commented earlier this week. "I have to remind them we're 6-5, and that's a lot better than this time last year. I want them to forget the last two games, to stress rebounding and getting back on defense and finding the ball. And making shots."

Tale of Two Nights. The Tigers must have left many fans who watched the Lobo Classic both nights, wondering what kind of team they were. In the upset of Weber State in the opening round, they played almost error-free basketball; the following night they managed to do very little right.

Two factors may have combined to change their performance in 24 hours time. Against Weber State, they had no particular expectations as the underdog, and consequently no great amount of pressure. Also the spectators did not favor either team strongly with their cheering.

Against the Wildcats, Princeton moved out to an early lead, and never looked back. Weber State employed a 2-3 zone at the start, and the Tigers blew it apart from the beginning. Smyth showed off his considerable talent for the first time, hitting seven of nine shots in the first half as the Tigers rolled to a 30-13 lead.

The Wildcats found Princeton's 1-2-2 zone almost impossible to penetrate, and their outside shooting was atrocious. And when they switched their defense to man-to-man, Princeton ran the backdoor play time after time for easy lay-ups.

In the second half, Weber State fouled repeatedly to try and break Princeton's momentum. The Tigers thus canned only seven shots from the field during the final 20 minutes, but made good on almost every chance from the foul line. Smyth ended with 20 points, Robinson had 14, and Enderle, 12, as Carril was able to clear his bench in the final minutes of play.

The crowd of 17,000 the next night, by contrast, was backing the home team Lobos all the way. New Mexico knocked off Butler, 72-61, to reach the finals.

With the idea of winning the tournament now more of a reality (Weber State had knocked off New Mexico earlier in the month), Princeton lost some of its poise. It's shooting fell off from the floor and the foul line, and turnovers were more numerous.

New Mexico took an early lead, and never lost it, staying tantalizingly ahead by five to seven points most of the way. Twice the Tigers closed to within one point in the second half, but could not manage to tie it.

Both Enderle and Simkus ran into foul trouble early, each getting his fourth soon after the intermission, and eventually fouling out. Smyth and Robinson both finished with 15 points.

NEW HAMPSHIRE NEXT

For Tiger Skaters. The Princeton hockey team, which split a pair of games in the Broadmoor Christmas Hockey Classic in Colorado last week, will return to Baker Rink this Wednesday to face a strong New Hampshire sextet.

Following that contest, the Tigers will travel to Providence for a return game with Brown on Friday night, before taking a 17-day break for exams.

Off to its best start ever in ECAC play, including four years ago when it won the division, New Hampshire is 7-3 to date with victories over Providence, Cornell, Maine and Dartmouth. It has lost to Harvard. The Wildcats' leading scorer is sophomore right wing Norm Lacombe with 16 points.

Since losing 6-3 to the Tigers in late November, Brown has continued its slide, and now sports a 1-8-1 mark. The high point of its season so far was a tie with Harvard in Cambridge. Princeton will be shooting for its ninth consecutive victory over the Bruins.

The Orange and Black has achieved a 6-6 mark at the midpoint in its 25-game schedule, giving it an outside shot at finishing over the .500 mark for only the second time in 16 years. It last achieved this goal in 1967-68, with a 13-10-1 mark in coach Bill Quakenbush's first season.

A year ago, Princeton was no better than 3-7-2, after losing both games in its western trip. The improvement appears largely because of the major contributions made by several freshmen on the squad. Bill Brady, Tim Oshier, Pat Brodeur, Todd Ladda, Cliff Albrecht, Mike Donato and Jeff York have all helped the cause, as has sophomore Tom Daccord, a jayvee player a year ago.

Unfortunately, there is still a tendency to play sloppily at times, and games that might have been won, slip away. The Broadmoor tourney, won by Colgate, is a case in point. In beating Denver, 4-1, in the

Football Coach Named

A decision has reportedly been made on a new assistant football coach for the Princeton football team to replace Steve Schnall, who resigned in November.

Dan Griggs, 32, will take on the duties of defensive secondary coach. He had been a coach at Southern Colorado State College.

In the shake-up following Princeton's worst seson ever on defense, John Knudson will take over Schnall's job as defensive coordinator, and keep his responsibilities as defensive end and linebacker coach.

opening game, Princeton played well for near the whole game, and was called for just three penalties along the way.

The following night against Colorado College (4-11-1), the Tigers were whistled for 11 infractions, including four by Ed Lee. Colorado took good advantage of its power play opportunities, scoring four times for a 7-6 victory. A five-goal flurry in the third period, including two in the final two minutes was not enough for the Orange and Black.

Princeton Scores First. York opened the scoring with un unassisted tally at 11:14 of the first period, which stood up into the first two minutes of the second stanza. Colorado tied the game at that point, with the first of its power play goals. Late in the period it added two more scores to take a 3-1 lead into the final frame.

The winners upped their margin to 4-1 just 56 seconds into the third, but Princeton was not ready to quit. Brady and Daccord scored 28 seconds apart less than a minute later to close the gap to 4-3.

It was the home team's turn next; it scored two more less than two minutes apart, one on a power play, to again open up a three-goal advantage, 6-3. Lee made it 6-4 at the 16:40 mark, but Colorado scored what proved to be the winning tally at 18:03 on its final power play of the evening.

Goals by Brodeur at 18:16 and Rob Scheuer with 48 seconds remaining on a Princeton power play brought the Tigers to within one, but time ran out. Coach Jim Higgins had pulled goalie Ron Dennis after Colorado was hit with a penalty, giving the Tigers a two-man advantage, but Dennis went back in the nets after Scheuer's goal.

The last time the Orange and Black played this kind of hockey, it nipped Maine, 7-6, in a wild third period, but this time it paid for its sloppy play.

In their victory over Denver, the Tigers got on the scoreboard early in the second period, after neither team could score in the first. Bill Brady, the leading scorer among the freshmen, and third on the team, tallied at 2:41 of the middle stanza. Jim Matthews and Chuck Huggins picked up assists.

The 1-0 lead held up until 17:38 when the Pioneers scored their only goal of the evening against Dennis, tying the contest at 1-1. It stayed that way until 8:07 of the final period.

At that point Steve MacDonald lifted the Orange and Black to a 2-1 lead, scoring a shorthanded goal, the team's first of the season. Defensemen Mike Boyles and Jeff York assisted on the goal.

A little over two minutes later, the Tigers added their third goal when Boyles beat Denver goalie Pat Kierney, assisted by Pat Brodeur. Ed Lee finished off the fine team effort with his seventh goal of the season at 18:25, assists going to Rick Valdarchi and Jim Matthews.

Dennis was superb in goal, stopping 39 of the 40 shots that came his way. Denver's record fell to 8-11 in a game witnessed by only 412 people in the 5,200-seat Denver University arena. Perhaps, they were still digging out from the record snowfall that hit the state two days earlier, or perhaps, like the Pioneers, they didn't figure it would be much of a contest.

HUN FIVE REPEATS

In Pennington Tourney. Talk about deja vu. The Hun School basketball team in a carbon copy of last year's start, defeated Pennington School, 65-43, last week to repeat as champions of the Pennington School Christmas Tournament.

Last year, Hun won the Peddie and Pennington tournaments en route to a 9-0 start. This year, the Raiders are 5-0 and will meet Dalton (N.Y.) Saturday at the Peddie gym in the championship game of the Peddie Tournament. The title game on December 12 was postponed because of a snowstorm.

Before that, Hun will risk its unbeated string at Newark Academy on Friday and will play host to Princeton Day School this Wednesday afternoon at 3:30.

Hun was scheduled to begin the week and the new year by clashing with its most formidable opponent on its schedule: Trenton High. The Tornadoes are being touted by many as the premier team in the state this season.

Hun engineered its win in the Pennington tourney by following a familiar pattern: stay close in the first half and then overwhelm the oppostiion in the second.

After ther first half against rival Pennington, Hun owned a 28-21 lead. But in the second half, the Red and Black, triggered by Sean Couch and Andrew Marlatt, who combined for 17 second half points, outscored Pennington by five in the third period and put the game on ice with 20-10 margin in the fourth period.

Couch and Franzoni each finished with 15 points for Hun, Franzoni also helping under the boards with eight rebounds. Marlatt had 14 points and 12 rebounds, while guard Stuart Tucker added eight points to the balanced Hun offense.

Pennington's Jay Bailey led all scorers with 26 points and had six assists. Bailey was named to the All-Tournament team along with Couch and Franzoni from Hun and Reggie Reese of Princeton Day School and Bob Flynn of Wardlaw.

The loss was only the second in nine games for Pennington -- both at the hands of Hun. In the semis of the Peddie Tournament, Hun had handcuffed Pennington, 78-51 defeat in six games, 61-46, while Pennington had to struggle to hold off a scrappy PDS team, 63-59.

Hun limited Wardlaw's top gun, Irv Green, who had poured in 32 points against Peddie in the Peddie Tournament, to 15 points while getting 18 from Couch.

Hun trailed by two, 22-20, at the half but turned the game around when it outscored the Rams, 20-5, in the third period. Leading a 13-point surge were Couch, Tucker and Franzoni. Tucker ended with 12 points Franzoni, nine. Paul Pintella and sophomore Terry Dearden combined for 21 more Hun points as Hun opened a 40-27 lead and was never threatened thereafter.

PHS FIVE BRACED

For Ewing in Home Opener. "We played a fine, fine ball game. That's probably as close to our potential as we can play."

Princeton High basketball coach Marv Trotman was clearly pleased with the all-round performance of his team last week when it defeated Matawan, 75-56, in the consolation round of the Manalapan Tournament. In outscoring Matawan, 43 to 20, in the second half, the Little Tigers ended up placing five players in double figures -- a feat it failed to do in all 21 games last season.

To continue its winning ways in its home opener Friday night at 8 against Ewing, PHS will have to duplicate its performance against Matawan and play to the far reaches of its potential.

MAN IN THE MIDDLE: The play of Princeton High center Kyle Hayes was instrumental in the Little Tigers' victory last week over Matawan in the Manalapan Tournament. The 6-5 junior has scored 43 points in three games.

if Trotman is eager to find what the potential for greatness is for his current squad, Ewing will provide the answer.

Ewing is unbeaten in four games and won its own Blue Devil Classic during the holiday break when it defeated West Catholic, 87-80, in the championship game, taking advantage of a 23-14 edge from the foul line.

Ewing can dominate the boards with 6-9 center Peter Magee, reportedly the tallest player ever to compete in Mercer County high school basketball. On offense, Ewing turns to sharpshooting Tom Berry and Terrance Bailey who combined for 43 points against West Catholic (7-4).

Although no one is conceding the Colonial Valley Conference title to Ewing, the Blue Devils have been picked as the team to beat for league honors. For certain, Trotman isn't conceding anything to Ewing.

"We need to play our game," Trotman stated, "and not get bothered by Ewing's size or McCorristin's press." PHS was scheduled to oppose McCorristin earlier this week in irts first league game. McCorristin, which participated in a Christmas tournament in Maryland and has a 3-4 record, has built a reputation for harrying opponents with a relentless, pressing defense and has been one of the top league contenders the past few years.

"I don't think we'll be in any games where we get blown out," predicted Trotman. Of course, he allowed, he was encouraged by his team's rout of Matawan last week. "I certainly feel it is something that could build some momentum for us," he said.

Following the Ewing game, PHS will be at Hightstown High Tuesday night. The meeting with the Rams will be the third of eight consecutive league games for the (2-1) Little Tigers.

Nice and Easy. Trotman described most of Princeton's buckets in the win over Matawan as "nice, easy shots. We had a lot of layups, a lot of short jumpers -- the kind of things you work for in practice. When you get'em, they're easy.

"We passed very, very well and played very good defense," continued Trotman, who labeled the contest, "the best officiated game I've seen since I've been coaching."

One reason PHS was able to turn the game around, recalled Trotman, was its ability to get the ball into its 6-5 center Kyle Hayes. "Hayes was taking his shots and also passing off very well," commented Trotman. "He seems to be getting a lot of confidence in himself." Hayes finished with 15 points.

Terry Phox lead all PHS scorers with 18 points, while sophomore Keith Green matched Haye's output with 15. Co-captain Jerry Ingram and Ken McKellar each added 10 more.

The score was tied at 32 at intermission, but PHS took control with a 26-10 advantage in the third period. For Matawan, its was its third loss in four games.

FORM PREVAILS

in Wrestling Tournament. Princeton High wrestling coach Lee Merrill termed it a "learning experience," while his counterpart at Hun School, Dave Faus concluded that he was "pleased, generally," after the results were tabulated in the annual Christmas Wrestling Tournament held last week at Steinert High School.

Each school placed a wrestler in the championship round. PHS sophomore David Schwartz was pinned in 1:05 by Hightstown's Rob Mortello, who pinned his way through the 115-pound class. Mortello has never lost a Mercer County match.

To reach the finals, Schwartz pinned wrestlers from Lawrence and Trenton in the quarterfinals and semi-final rounds and recorded a 9-2 decision in the prelims.

For Hun, Todd Lipani reached the finals on a bye and two pins before yielding the 158-pound title to Dave Williams of Hightstown, one of three Ram champions, who worked Lipani over for a 15-5 decision.

"Todd was dumped early, chipped a tooth and was seeing stars," commented Faus. "I think he lost a little enthusiasm for the match but I was glad to see him reach the finals."

As a team, neither PHS nor Hun fared well. The Little Tigers finished last in a field of 13 with 22½ points; Hun tied Nottingham High for second to last as each compiled 34 points.

Hightstown entered the tournament as the team to beat and finished on top with 143 points, while Steinert, which had upset the favored Rams last year for the team title, finished second this time with 115. Following in order were Ewing 78, Trenton 77½, Hamilton 72½, Hopewell Valley 71, Lawrenceville 62, West Windosr 54, Lawrence 46 and Notre Dame 36.

"Up Against It." "A lot of our boys had never seen a tournament before. Most of them weren't seeded," observed Merrill. "Our inexperienced guys were up against it; It was a learning experience, I would say."

Princeton's 135-pounder Scott Perone, after an opening 10-2 win, was pinned by Trenton's Irving Muse, the eventual champion, in 5:56 in the quarterfinals. Co-captain Ralph Carnevale exited in the preliminaries where he lost a 4-1 decision to Walt Pullen of Notre Dame in the 170-pound class. "Ralph got his head down and the guy ran around him and that was the end," said Merrill.

PHS veteran Nick Hastings, fighting a temperature, drew an opening round bye but then dropped an 11-1 decision to Ewing's Rob Rutledge at 129 pounds.

Only two other wrestlers in addition to Lipani competed in the tournament from Hun. Rich Gallin, after two quick pins in the first two rounds in 1:47 and 2:31, was pinned in 2:34 by Randy Pullen of Hightstown in the semis to finish fourth. Pullen went on to win the 122-pound title.

Chris Black, Hun's fine 170-pound wrestler, mauled Jim Azarowicz of Lawrence, 24-4, in the opening round but was flattened by Lawrenceville's Peter Holmes in 1:40 in the second round. Homes continued through to the championship round which he captured with 11-7 decision over Hopewell Valley's Bob Eversberg.

Home Opener Friday. PHS will resume its regular season at home with a match against newcomer Nottingham High on Friday at 3:45 while PHS is pointing at Nottingham for its first dual meet victim, the North Stars have benefited from an influx of former Steinert wrestlers who came over when the school was formed this year.

One is Greg Wetcher who won the 101-pound title in the Christmas tournament. "For us to pull it out, it's going to be tough," agreed Merrill. Monday evening, PHS will entertain Hamilton in a match starting at 8. Jayvee bouts will start at 6:30.

Hun will get the first crack at Nottingham, however. The Raiders will oppose the North Stars this Wednesday afternoon at 3:30.

Then Hun will play host to Academy of New Church Friday at 3:45 and George School on Tuesday at 3:30. Faus is a little aprehensive about Hun's chances.

New Church has a strong wrestling program and pounded Hun last year in a dual meet. "George was a close meet last year and it will be close this year," predicted Faus. "If we can win three out of our next five matches I'll be happy." Hun is presently 4-0.

'streets,' in the ordinary sense: they define the green."

Concern about Loading. Many board members wondered about the service entrance. Where would the loading be, for stores in the lantern building or north of it?

"If the lantern had a 'front,' where was the 'back'? On Palmer Square West? Would there be underground service?"

And then, there was the addition to the Nassau Inn, to be built on the strip parking lot across from the loading dock of the present post office.

The board agreed with the item on the list that called for Collins to re-design the east facade of the new addition. That's the part that will be visible from Witherspoon Streets; particularly, from the windows of apartments or offices on the Benson Building side of the street.

But not all 16 carried the day.

For example, voting against the list's recommendation, all eight board members agreed to let Collins keep the Hulfish plaza at its planned size. But all eight also told Collins that, somehow, "by architectural means," the bulk of the five-story building that will buttress the plaza, must be reduced.

Post Office to Move. And the board over-ruled another one of the 16 and agreed to let Collins move the post office from its present building. But Mrs. Hutter, who had helped prepare the list, defended the recommendation and, joined by one other board member, valiantly voted to keep the post office where it is.

Often, applicants and audience groan over the endless meetings, endless deliberations, endless memoranda of the Planning Board. Legal dueling in which lawyers feint, spar and attack, occupies long stretches of recorded tape. Citizens are allowed to speak, at what often seems like unnecessary length, and the bang of the gavel is rarely heard.

Nevertheless, the Planning Board is a ceaseless, dedicated, incorruptible, independent, hard-working, lint-picking, persevering, exasperating guardian of the Princeton community.

And in late winter, they'll begin all over again when Collins comes back with its first building plans.

ART PEOPLE PLACE

Courses Offered. The Arts Council of Princeton, in the first full season at its new Art People Place home on Witherspoon, is offering courses for all ages in dance, story-telling, art, theatre and music.

A dance-exercise course by Mary deAngelis is designed to help the circulatory system and give participants a chance to be creative at the same time. Another class, based on Rudolph Steiner's Eurythmy, will show students how to create "visible music and poetry" through gestures that respond to sounds.

Charlene Gregory will teach Tahitian, Hawaiian, Samdan and Madri dance. Deshara Heisman's Middle Eastern dance classes will emphasize co-ordination, flexibility and the improving of muscle tone. In a modern dance class for adults, Esther Seligman will also combine exercise and creativity.

Under the direction of Sandy Goettinger, there will be one modern and one jazz class a week for children 10 through 12. Mimi Schwensen will teach the jazz class. Ms. Goettinger is also offering modern dance for teens: a basic course in modern dance technique, and a dance workshop for 10-15-year-olds with at least two years' training.

Imogen Wheeler's ballet workshop will offer classical ballet training at beginner-through-advanced levels. Mrs. Wheeler also gives an exercise course using the Pilates method favored by many professional dancers.

Photography Workshop. A photography workshop by Eileen Hohmuth will cover basic camera controls, the composition of pictures, developing black and white film, making contact sheets and enlargements, and mounting photographs.

Susan Danoff will teach story-telling in several classes. One will be an adult workshop in which participants use stories they have chosen themselves. In an eight-session workshop, boys and girls in third to fifth grade will have a chance to read, write, listen to and illustrate stories. At the end of the workshop, they will take home a book of their own stories.

There will also be a creative writing and story-telling course for high school students.

In the art department, Anne Reeves will give a series of Design Labs for grades one-three, four-six and seven-eight. Students will learn to recognize good design by creating their own projects. Molly Moskowitz will show students how to design quilts, T-shirts, sneakers and other kinds of wearable — or hangable — fabric art.

Spotlight Children's Theatre, directed by Brian Collar, will provide instruction in all aspects of the performing arts. Children who sign up will work on presentation of musical comedies. The age range is four to 16.

For children three through nine, there are classes in music by Marjorie Herrington. She uses singing, movement, drama, rhythmic exercises and the playing of instruments in her classes.

Details on all courses and information about special workshops, are available at The Art People Place Tuesdays through Saturdays from 11 to 5. The telephone is 924-8777.

SCHOLARSHIPS AWARDED

At Stuart School. Stuart Country Day School of the Sacred Heart has announced the winners of four merit scholarships, applicable to ninth grade tuition, to be awarded for the 1983-1984 academic year.

First prize winner is Rebecca Poage, currently an eighth grade student in Stuart's Middle School. Three girls scored equally in an unusual tie for second place. They are Margaret Gray and Julie Kim, both Stuart eighth graders, and Meredith Hlafter, currently a student at John Witherspoon School. No third place prize was awarded this year.

As a result of her performance on the admissions and scholarship exam given in November, Rebecca will receive $1,500. The three second prize winners will each receive $1,000 scholarships. There were 55 competitors for the merit scholarships.

Rebecca is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James F. Poage of Province Line Road, Skillman. Margaret is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul E. Gray of Maple Avenue, Plainsboro; Julie is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Samuel Kim of Montgomery Road, Skillman, and Meredith is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John D. Hlafter of Morgan Place.

Four Alternatives Studied To Relieve Overcrowding In Borough Hall for Police

When a Borough police officer brings in a suspect, he must drive into an open carport. Then he opens a combination lock to the entrance and escorts the prisoner up a flight of stairs into the building and into an unsecured corridor shared with the public waiting area.

There is no place to interview this suspect — or a witness or the victim — without disrupting the ongoing work of the rest of the police department.

There is no place for either juvenile detention or counseling. By law, juveniles may not be housed with people defined as "criminals."

There is no place to interrogate a suspect, no area with one-way glass, no place providing privacy, security.

There are no training facilities in Borough Hall, no place for audio-visual demonstrations, lectures.

Noise, like the rattling of doors on the four cells, is "overwhelming."

Lobby lighting is so poor that an officer on night duty has trouble seeing who's coming in the front door.

The storage of information is crowding out the people who must use it. There is no central control of files, and the Borough's 32 police officers all have access to them. The public uses them as well — insurance agencies, in particular.

"Over-utilization" of space characterizes the whole storage situation.

Four detectives share a room of 180 square feet.

In short, Borough police have problems.

This week, Council began studying a $3,000 report on police space, prepared by Princeton architect E. Harvey Myers.

Mr. Myers presents four alternatives. The fourth and most expensive, would be to find land somewhere and build a completely new facility. Cost: $1,030,000 not including the land.

He also suggests something more modest: construction of either a one-story addition on the east side of Borough Hall, where the police parking area and carport are located, or a two-story building on the north side of Borough Hall,

Princeton Woman Dies After Being Shot In Franklin Twp. High School Parking Lot

A 33-year old Princeton resident was shot and killed Monday night in the parking lot of Franklin Township High School.

Mrs. Christine Thick, 32 Jefferson Road, died shortly after being taken to St. Peters Hospital in New Brunswick. She had been shot once in the back. Franklin Chief of Police James Brown said that police believe Mrs. Thick was the victim of a robbery, because her purse was not found at the scene.

There were no witnesses to the actual shooting, police reported, but early Tuesday evening, they announced that a strong suspect in the case had shot himself. As Franklin Township police detectives and members of the Somerset County prosecutor's office armed with a search warrant gained entry to the home of 18-year old Michael Ramble of Somerset, the suspect shot himself in the head in an upstairs room.

Capt. Joseph Juzwiak said that police had gone to Ramble's home on another matter. But he added that from information police had received from an armed robbery, and from the type of weapon that was used in the Thick murder, and from other corroborating evidence, "we feel pretty certain that we have the right man."

According to Chief Brown, Mrs. Thick had been honored earlier in the evening at a Board of Education meeting at the Franklin Township Junior High School. She had left there, and was on her way to the high school, where she had been employed as a music teacher for the past three years, to drop some papers off at her office.

She never reached the high school building. "We believe that she was accosted in the parking lot on the side of the school," Chief Brown said. There was an aerobic class in progress inside the high school at the time and Chief Brown added that it is believed someone

Judge's Order Halts Moment of Silence in N.J. Classrooms; 3 Princeton Residents Join ACLU In Filing Suit against State

A temporary restraining order was issued Monday by Federal District Court Judge Dickinson Debevoise preventing the state from requiring a minute of silence at the beginning of each school day in public schools.

Judge Debevoise ordered the state to show cause within eight days why the temporary injunction should not be made permanent. The hearing will be held next Tuesday.

"It appeared that the challenged statute is unconstitutional on its face and as applied, in that it violates the first and fourteenth amendments to the U.S. Constitution," the judge stated in his written opinion.

The American Civil Liberties Union filed the suit against the state. Joining the ACLU were three Princeton residents: Mrs. Jean Ross, 32 Markham Road and her 10-year-old son, Damon and Mrs. Bonnie Schorske, 171 Jefferson Road. In addition, Mrs. Schorske's son, Mark Tulloss, an eighth-grade student in Roosevelt, filed an affidavit with the court. Another son, David Tulloss, a fifth-grader at Community Park, was not part of the suit.

Governor Thomas H. Kean vetoed the legislation December 6. Lawyers from the attorney general's office told Judge Debevoise they did not intend to defend the law, since they had not passed it.

The one-minute requirement had never been imposed in Princeton. Superintendent Paul Houston said, after Judge Debevoise's order, that it was "unclear" just how the law was supposed to be implemented and since a suit was expected, the school board decided to wait and see.

Mrs. Ross, a lawyer with the state's Division of Mental Health and Hospitals of the Department of Youth and Family Services, said she joined the suit because she was

No Bond Issue Is Needed For This Year for Repairs To Borough Sewer System

Sewer repair work can continue without a bond issue — at least for a year — because there is money at hand, Borough Council learned this week.

Like a home-owner adding up the money in this account and that and deciding not to take out a loan, Richard Macgill told Council about his arithmetic. Mr. Macgill is chairman of Council's public works committee and Borough representative on the Sewer Operating Committee.

Both Borough and Township have received a $375,000 refund from the Stony Brook Regional Sewerage Authority, for a $750,000 total. (Apparently South Brunswick, also an Authority member, used a greater share of plant capacity than expected, thereby reducing the amount charged to other municipalities.)

In addition, there is $100,000 in the Sewer Trust Fund, contributed by people who want to build and to tie into the sewer system. Collins Development Corporation will be contributing $400,000 to that fund and Bowers Development, with its Township office building project, $100,000 to $200,000.

This overall total is $1,450,000. Sewer Operating Committee secretary and Borough engineer George Olexa has estimated $1.5 million to repair the sewer lines completely.

In addition, Mr. Macgill pointed out, a possible new surcharge on sewer bills could be levied.

"Once we know what we'll get and when, would be time to borrow," Mr. Macgill told Council. "And at the end of the year, we'll know how much more needs to be done and what it will cost.

"We might even," he added, "get another refund from the Sewer Authority.

"Meanwhile, we can let out contracts for the work, not go the route of a bond ordinance, and work until the money runs out."

Using this money means speeding up work already in progress, Mr. Olexa says. The internal chemical grouting of sewer lines north of Princeton-Kingston Road will involve the Random Road area
